

BORAH RENEWS EXTRA SESSION SENATE FIGHT

Tells Republicans They Are Betraying Public Trust in Not Enacting Real Aid to Farmer.

LITTLE SUPPORT GIVEN HIS PLAN

Curtis States Capper-Haugen Bill Is To Be Rushed Through, But Borah Says It Is Sham.

BY RAYMOND CLAPPER.
Washington, February 24.—Undaunted by the white house opposition to an extra session, Senator Borah has renewed his agitation for an early meeting of the new congress to deal with farm legislation.

When the administration leader of the senate, Curtis, of Kansas, announced on the floor that arrangements had been made to rush through the Capper-Haugen cooperative marketing bill proposed by the president's special agricultural commission, Senator Borah declared this was nothing but an expedient to obey technically the party promise to deal with the farm problem.

Playing Lone Hand
As usual, Borah is playing a lone hand in his demand for an extra session. Curiously, he has obtained no support from those senators and congressmen directly interested in farm legislation. They are all acquiescent in the administration's wish to get rid of congress until next fall.

"Anything we enact here these last few days will only be an indigestible proposition and it would be far better if we should wait another year," Borah said. "For the republican majority in the last election, pledged to enact agricultural relief—I say for them to go home on March 4 without carrying out this pledge is a betrayal of public trust and ought to be condemned and will be condemned."

Takes Slap at Curtis.
Curtis interrupted Borah with the assertion that the administration forces had agreed to adopt the Capper-Haugen marketing bill this week. "That means nothing," Borah retorted. "It means only that we are going to pass a bill that has only had consideration from a collection of $12,000-a-year commissioners. It won't even have our approbation and we cannot debate it intelligently. It is sheer expediency and nothing else. Instead of having an extra session of the senate, we ought to have an extra session of the whole congress."

Borah Looking Ahead.
Borah is not optimistic of persuading President Coolidge to change his mind regarding an extra session. Some administration people think Borah is merely being careful to keep the record straight so far as he is concerned—all with a far-seeing eye cast toward 1928. Borah is gradually taking the leadership not only with regard to foreign affairs, as chairman of the senate foreign relations committee, but he is making himself a champion on farm aid, which is a sure-fire way to make an impression on the middle west and the country beyond.

FARM LEGISLATION IS GIVEN PRIORITY.
Washington, February 24.—Farm legislation in the form of the Capper-Haugen cooperative marketing bill, was given preferred status today on the senate legislative program, behind the general omnibus pension measure, which has right-of-way after the pending banking legislation has been disposed of.

WILLIS TELLS OF FINANCES.
G. F. Willis, chairman of the Stone Mountain Memorial association, Tuesday issued a statement in refutation of charges by Gutzon Borglum, sculptor for the monument, that the association has no prospect of securing funds for completion of the mammoth undertaking. Mr. Willis, who is a well-known Atlanta capitalist, asserted that the

MARY CLAIRE BERRY, 16, DRAMATICALLY DENIES MURDERING BROTHER

Will Know Her Fate Today

Mary Claire Berry, 16-year-old girl on trial at Milledgeville, charged with death of her six-year-old brother. After the judge charges the jury this morning the case will be considered and she probably will know her fate by tonight.

COOLIDGE DECLINES TO TAKE ANY HAND IN MEMORIAL ROW BY BEELER PLAN

Request of Borglum To Appoint Commission To Investigate Conditions of Work Here Refused.

Washington, February 24.—President Coolidge does not believe it would be a proper function for the chief executive to appoint a commission to investigate the conditions of work being done on the Confederate memorial at Stone Mountain, Ga. Request that he appoint such a commission is understood to have been rejected.

Formal request was made of the president several weeks ago by Gutzon Borglum, the sculptor retained by the Stone Mountain Memorial association to conduct the work, for creation of a commission to supervise the construction of the memorial.

Doubted Advisability.
Mr. Coolidge at that time expressed doubt as to the advisability of the government entering in any way upon a project initiated by a private organization and his opposition to appointment of such a commission was reiterated today at the white house.

Borglum, who has become involved in a controversy with the memorial association, recently conferred with the president, who afterward is understood to have ascertained the views of the association. The existence of the controversy is understood to have been another factor impelling the decision by the president to maintain a "hands-off" policy.

GIRL TAKES STAND FOR TWO MINUTES AT MILLEDGEVILLE

Jury Will Receive Charge From Judge J. B. Park This Morning at 9 O'Clock.

ASSERTS INNOCENCE OF ALL CHARGES

No Reason, No Motive for Slaying Her Young Brother, Girl Tells Jurymen Face To Face.

Milledgeville, Ga., February 24.—Mary Claire Berry will not know her fate tonight. Judge J. B. Park adjourned court at 11 o'clock tonight and instructed the sheriff to return the jury at 9 o'clock tomorrow morning to receive his charge.

Adjournment came at the conclusion of Joe E. Pottle's dramatic appeal to the jury "for God's sake, don't spoil the life of this family."

Mary Claire Berry, the sphinx-girl of Milledgeville, came out of her somnambulist-like trance today and in a voice curiously like that of a child reciting, told the jury trying her for the poison murder of her six-year-old brother, Emory, that she was "without sin."

Spoke Only Two Minutes.
It was the high spot in a brief, terse defense and her statement occupied less than two minutes, but it was packed full of sensation for the hundreds whose mumble hushed abruptly as the slim auburn-haired college girl walked slowly to the stand.

"Gentlemen of the jury," the girl began. "I am absolutely innocent. 'I have done nothing wrong and I know nothing of the death of my brother, Emory. Furthermore, I can cast no light on this 'unsolved mystery.' I know nothing, either of the death a week before of my brother, Adolphus."

"I was put in the Georgia state sanitarium October 7, and held there nearly three months, utterly without cause. The poison the state chemist said he found in the body of Emory is equally an unknown quantity to me. I know nothing of it."

Had No Reason for Murder.
"Wherever there is a crime committed there must be a motive or a reason. I had no reason and no motive. I loved my brothers and mothered them. I denied myself pleasures to comfort them. I loved them and they loved me. . . . and I am innocent of any wrong done to them."

"How they were poisoned I do not know. Nor why; nor by whom. 'Gentlemen of the jury, I thank you.'"

When she had finished the defense rested. The rebuttal was brief. Arguments were under way 30 minutes later.

Lawyers Make Speeches.
Colonel Marion Allen for the defense spoke for an hour. He was followed by Solicitor General John Duke for the state, who was before the jury one hour and fifty minutes, pleading for the conviction of the girl.

Colonel J. E. Pottle, in an impassioned speech of an hour and twenty minutes, closed the case for the defense.

At the conclusion of Colonel Pottle's speech, court was adjourned until Wednesday morning.

The principal testimony of the day was by Dr. E. L. Everhart, state chemist, of Atlanta, who testified

HOPE DIMMED FOR ENACTING SHOALS BILL

Agreement by Conferees Today Expected, But Opponents Prepared To Talk Report To Death.

SECRETARY WEEKS GOES TO CAPITOL

Longworth Predicts Measure Will Die in Conference — Underwood Works Feverishly.

Washington, February 24.—House and senate conferees on the Underwood Muscle Shoals leasing bill said frankly today that they were dubious that the measure could be enacted at this session of congress.

They expect to come to another agreement on the bill tomorrow, but as there then will remain less than six working days of the session, they are convinced that even a small group of the opponents could block senate action.

In a three-hour session today the conferees began the task of eliminating from the bill the matter which the senate held had been inserted in contravention of the authority of the managers under the senate rules. Some of the difficulties of the conferees were removed when they received information as to the exact nature of the objectionable matter.

Proponents of the bill contend they have the votes necessary for favorable action if they ever can get it to a vote. Action must come first in the senate, and with the usual contention there at the end of the session, opponents would have little difficulty in staging a successful filibuster.

While opponents have not disclosed their intentions pending a second report from the conferees, the gossip in the cloakroom is that they will talk the report to death. That would defer any legislation for disposition of the great plants on the Tennessee river until the new congress gets into harness.

Weeks Goes to Capitol.

While the conferees were in session today, Secretary Weeks, who has been consulting frequently during the "adjournment" of the senate, visited the capitol and had a long conference with Senator Curtis, of Kansas, the republican leader, and Chairman Keyes, of the senate managers.

Neither Senator Curtis nor Mr. Keyes would disclose what had been discussed, but they did concede that the conference had to do with the Underwood bill. There was no indication after the meeting that the road for the republican leader, had been smoother as a result of the conference.

Senator Underwood, Alabama, author of the legislation, was closeted with the republican managers all afternoon at their invitation.

Will Reach Agreement.

"We expect to reach an agreement," chairman Keyes said at the conclusion of the first day's session. "However, I have received rather definite information that a small group is prepared to prevent passage of this legislation. It looks as though the power (trust) fertilizer trust would be successful."

Concurring in the view that an agreement might be reached as early as tomorrow, Chairman McKenzie, of the house managers, said, however, that he was not closing his eyes to the legislative situation that could be taken advantage of to block final action.

LONGWORTH SEES DEFEAT OF MUSCLE SHOALS BILL.

Washington, February 24.—Belief that the Underwood Muscle Shoals bill would die in conference was expressed today by Representative Longworth, the republican leader, who said he saw little possibility of conferees reaching an agreement which the senate would accept before adjournment March 4.

Other measures Mr. Longworth predicted would not be brought into law at this session include the Longworth-Garrett constitutional amendment resolution and the bill for reorganization of government departments. Neither will come to a vote in the house under the revised program of leaders.

SIEGE DECLARED OVER KURDISTAN

Mounted Kurd Tribesmen Assail Turkish Troops; Liberal Regime of Kemal Pasha Resented.

Constantinople, February 24.—Martial law has been declared throughout Kurdistan. Sheikh Said's mounted tribesmen are carrying the fight against the Turkish troops out of the rugged hills toward the plains.

Turkish warships have bombarded Haten, the seaside village where the rebellious Sheikh Said is believed to reside.

The commander reported to Constantinople that the populace was indifferently frightened and that considerable damage was done.

An extraordinary session of the council of ministers, presided over by Mustafa Kemal, extended the state of siege to one week of Turkish Kurdistan Tuesday after the rebellion had flourished for three days. The government troops are reported to have won the first skirmish with the Kurd hordes.

OSBORNE WOOD FAILS FRENCH PROSECUTION ON BAD-CHECK CHARGE

Unhappy Wedding Revealed By Deans' Estate Heiress

MISS REBA LAWRENCE

Romance of Miss Reba Lawrence Blasted by Report Groom Had Deserted Minnesota Wife.

Unfortunate romance has stalked into the life of Miss Reba Lawrence, beautiful Atlanta girl and beneficiary in the will of the late R. E. Dean, it was revealed Tuesday.

According to her own story given late Tuesday night, Miss Lawrence was married about three weeks ago in Chattanooga to Marc Colberg McDermott, who was represented to her as a man in high standing in the Minnesota community from which he came. Just a few days after the marriage while Miss Lawrence was at the home of her mother in this city a message from friends in the north served to blast her romance.

The message carried the allegation that her husband had deserted a wife and child in Minnesota and when McDermott found that the news had reached Miss Lawrence he suddenly disappeared, leaving only a note admitting that "all had been found out" and asking forgiveness for his deception.

Tells Story of Romance. . . . Miss Lawrence, in her story of the marriage and events which led up to the separation, said: "Late last year I was asked by R. E. Deans, who has been for many years a close friend of my family and whom I had considered as a foster father since the death of my own father, to accompany him to Rochester, Minn., where he intended to enter the Mayo Brothers sanitarium."

"This I did, in company with an attendant, and while I was in Minnesota I met Mr. McDermott. He was introduced to me by friends of unquestionable social standing in the community and I supposed him to be just what they said he was, a single man of fine character."

"After our return to Atlanta and the death of Mr. Deans, my new-found

CASINO DIRECTOR FINALLY DECIDES ON COURT ACTION

Son of General Leonard Wood Fails To Make Good Check for 35,000 Francs Given Week Ago.

MAY AVOID ACTION BY EARLY PAYMENT.

Friends of Young Ex-Army Officer and Wall Street Plunger Insist He Will Come Clear.

BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.

Biarritz, France, February 24.—After having awaited a full week in order to give Osborne C. Wood every opportunity to redeem what he alleges is a worthless check, which Wood cashed February 17 at the Biarritz Casino, the director of the casino announced today that he had decided finally to take legal proceedings against the former American army officer.

Even at this stage of the proceedings, the police assert that director of the casino expressed his willingness to withdraw the complaint should he be reimbursed in the sum of 35,000 francs alleged to have been paid to Wood. It was added that the cash payment must be made promptly, however, inasmuch as the controversy tonight passed out of the hands of the local authorities and into the jurisdiction of the Bayonne magistrates, who will decide whether a warrant should be issued.

Law Must Take Course.
If a warrant for the arrest of Wood, who was last heard from in Spain, is issued, then the law must take its course. It was said in legal circles today that even should the complaint be withdrawn, Wood must appear before a French court, which would decide whether there were grounds for a trial. Precedents are cases where complaints are withdrawn after reimbursement is effected.

Mr. Wood was very well and favorably known at the casino and the hotels of Biarritz. He made numerous lengthy stays here recently, director of the casino said he had advanced the American various sums for checks in the past, some of which were for larger amounts than the one now in dispute, and that all of them invariably were honored.

Expected Adjustment Shortly.
Wood, who turned up at San Sebastian, Spain, recently after a stop here on his way from Paris, where his unexplained departure last week had mystified his friends for a time, is making an effort from San Sebastian to arrange some financial matters which his friends here say have given him temporary annoyance, but which they report the ex-army officer as expecting to adjust shortly.

Mr. Wood, they say, came to the frontier near here Saturday and had a talk with a person who went there

Battle of Gloria Swanson CHOCOLATE MALTED MILK IS FIRST NOURISHMENT For Life Practically Won

Paris, February 24.—Gloria Swanson will live to laugh again at premature reports of her death. The movie star's fight against death is now declared to be practically won.

She is en route to complete recovery and her progress will be blocked only by unforeseen complications, according to her physicians.

Reassured by this report, Gloria's new husband, the Marquis De La Faisse De La Coudray, who has spent his days and nights at her bedside since the actress was stricken by a mysterious ailment in the midst of their honeymoon, returned to his hotel Tuesday night to get some sleep.

The marquis laughed when told that published reports in the United States had declared his beautiful wife to be dead.

"She has been reported dead several times in the past year," he said. "This report will greatly amuse her."

The last bulletin of the physicians, issued at 8 p. m., said: "The patient's improvement continues. Her temperature is 37.4 (centigrade). The fever is decreasing and the patient is taking nourishment."

"The crisis came early this morning," the marquis said earlier. "She was then near death and the doctors had virtually given up hope, but she has shown tremendous courage and desire and will to live."

"She is now much better and sat up in bed to write personally cables which will reassure her friends in the United States. Today she took her first food in several days and had a strong desire for a chocolate malted milk, which I went down town to get for her."

Gloria drank the chocolate malted milk with relish, the marquis added.

Eight Killed In Explosion Of Dynamite

Bodies of Victims Blown To Bits as Charge Goes Off Prematurely.

San Antonio, Texas, February 24.—Eight men were killed and eight injured in a premature explosion of a heavy charge of dynamite in a rock quarry in the outskirts of the village of Langtry, 140 miles west of here, late today.

The bodies of some of the victims were blown to bits. Others were hurled more than 200 yards, while some were buried beneath heavy masses of rock and earth as the side of the hill toppled on them.

A score of men working at the quarry, located at Langtry, escaped injury, but could not tell how the explosion occurred.

The Southern Pacific has maintained a large crew of workmen near Langtry blasting rock.

GASOLINE RAISES SCORED BY NAPIER

Describing the present retail price of gasoline in Georgia as "fearful," Attorney General George M. Napier Tuesday declared he would be inclined to adopt legal measures available to restore the price of gasoline to what might be regarded as a "normal price." Mr. Napier's remarks were called forth by the latest increase in price of gasoline in this state—1 cent a gallon—which makes a total advance in price of 7 cents in the past few weeks.

"The addition of 7 cents to the retail price a gallon simply means," said Mr. Napier, "that the people of Georgia are called on to add $7,000,000 to the profits of the various companies selling gasoline in this state."

The attorney general pointed out that these increases seemed timed to come just at the opening of the spring and summer season, when the demand for gasoline would normally show heavy increase. There is likely to be a reduction in the amount bought, he stated, inasmuch as many people have written declaring that they plan to buy just as little as possible while the price remains at its present high level.

Mr. Napier is secretary of a national committee of attorneys general appointed to take any possible action toward regulating gasoline prices, and he anticipates early developments to follow a request made by this committee to the attorney general of the United States, asking cooperation of the federal authorities in efforts to prevent the alleged "arbitrary and un-called-for" fluctuations in gasoline prices.

Retail price of gasoline in Atlanta Tuesday was advanced 1 cent—to 27 cents a gallon—by four companies, Standard, Wofford, Reed and Pen-American, while inquiry made at filling stations operated by the Gulf Refining company disclosed that while their retail price remained at 26 cents on Tuesday the 1-cent advance would go into effect at their stations this morning.

'ANDY' AND 'MIN' COMING TO TUDOR TWO DAYS WEEKLY

Andy Gump, the famous cartoon character which appears in The Constitution every day, and which makes millions laugh all over the nation daily, is now appearing every week in Atlanta at the Tudor theater. Manager James Jackson having arranged to show it Wednesday and Thursday each week for the next eleven weeks.

The arrangement of the manager of the Tudor to have these shown now is particularly timely, as Sidney Smith, the creator, is now in Palm Beach, and through his cartoon is broadcasting the beauties and balminess of the south each day.

The comedy scheduled for Wednesday and Thursday of this week is called "What's the Use," and not only shows Joe Murphy in the character of Andy, but has Fay Fincher playing the part of Min and Jackie Coogan as the mischievous.

Savannah Docks Open to Business Only, Says Court

Savannah's municipal docks are not properly open to the general public, but represent a business plant owned and operated by the city itself for financial return and open only for business purposes, the court of appeals of Georgia held in a decision handed down Tuesday.

The court also held that an invitation from the mayor of Savannah to the entire city to participate in the official welcome home to American soldiers returning from Germany did not throw open the municipal docks for public use.

The case was that of Bynum against the mayor and aldermen of Savannah. Bynum was injured when hit by several pieces of lumber, which were dislodged from the top of a pile upon which other spectators had climbed to view the celebration. He sued the city for damages, contending that the lumber, which was on the municipal dock, was not properly stacked.

The court held despite the mayor's proclamation, however, that the presence of Bynum or other citizens who were not on the dock on business was merely that of a trespasser or licensee, and that damages for the injury could not be collected from the city.

HENRY FORD PAYS VISIT TO BERRY SCHOOL AT ROME

Rome, Ga., February 24.—Henry Ford paid his second visit in two years to the Berry school here today. After he had visited the famous plant for mountain boys and girls the motor manufacturer sent two tractors and a truck for use on the farm.

He went at once to the school on alighting from his private car and his secretary could not say if the motor equipment of the school would be increased as a result of the visit.

His visit today was unheralded and was brief.

Mr. Ford came to Rome from Savannah, where he spent Monday. He left this afternoon for Detroit.

"You say it's all off between Jack and his new girl? Why, he told me she was the light of his life." "I guess he must have meant a flash-light,"—Boston Transcript.

Pullman Surcharge Rapped As Unjust and Unnecessary By Two Minority Democrats

Tax Described by Congressmen as "Nothing Short of Penalty on Requirements of Nature."

Washington, February 24.—Asserting that the interstate commerce commission was "hopelessly divided" on the proposal for revocation of the 50 per cent Pullman surcharge, Representatives Barkley, Kentucky, and Parks, Arkansas, Democrats, today filed minority views as members of the house commerce committee, favoring legislation for its elimination.

The committee, which voted recently overwhelmingly to report unfavorably on a surcharge elimination proposal, was declared in the minority report to have held hearings so that the majority report "might influence members of the house to vote against the senate amendment" having the same object, attached as a rider to the independent offices appropriation bill.

Vote Due to Senate Rider. Except for the senate rider, the house would not have been given an opportunity to vote on the proposition at all, the minority charged.

"We object to the imposition of this extra charge upon the traveling public and favor its removal," the report continued. "The larger portion of this surcharge revenue is received by roads that are being paid under contract with the Pullman company for hauling their cars, and a very considerable portion of the surcharge revenue is being received by roads that are earning more than the fair return fixed under the law."

It described as "nothing short of a penalty upon the requirements of nature" the imposition of the surcharge on a passenger when, "after having paid the road for transporting him and the Pullman company for lodging him, he is required to pay the railroad company an extra amount for the privilege of paying the Pullman company for the accommodations which it provides."

Greater Cost Not Shown. The report said that it was not conclusively shown that the per mile cost of hauling a sleeping car was greater than that for a day coach. Railroads do not make any contribution to the capital investment involved in construction, maintenance and operation of Pullman cars, it continued, but they save the expense which would be required for additional equipment with no Pullmans.

Touching on the extra weight and hauling cost that opponents of surcharge removal contend is involved in a Pullman, the report asserted, "the difference is more than made up by the fact that all the expense connected with a Pullman car is borne by the Pullman company, except for the hauling of it, and for this the roads annually receive under the contracts with the Pullman company more than $12,000,000."

JACOBS TO DISCUSS FOLK LORE PLAYS AT GUILD MEETING

Dr. Thornwell Jacobs, president of Oglethorpe university, will discuss folk lore plays produced by the school during the past five years at a meeting of the Theater Guild of Atlanta to be held at 7:30 o'clock Thursday night in the Spanish room of the Henry Grady hotel.

The guild and Oglethorpe will produce jointly a series of folk lore plays for the Atlanta public. These plays were written by Oglethorpe students.

"Realities," the first of these plays to be produced, was written by Rosetter Chance, Oglethorpe student and member of the guild and produced under direction of Mrs. Earl Sherwood Jackson at Oglethorpe.

D. O. K. K. DRILL TEAM
TO GIVE PLAY TONIGHT

The D. O. K. K. drill team will present "Molly's Way," a three-act play, at 8 o'clock tonight in the Knights of Pythias hall, in the Forsyth building. Proceeds will be used to send delegates to the imperial palace meeting, to be held in August, in Providence, R. I., in an effort to bring the 1927 convention to Atlanta.

DR. W. J. McNAUGHTON NEAR DEATH AT GRADY

Dr. William J. McNaughton, who at one time was the central figure in one of Georgia's most noted murder trials, Tuesday was near death at Grady hospital, suffering, according to doctors, from toxine poison and other complications.

Dr. McNaughton was tried for the murder of Fred Flanders, in Emanuel county, many years ago and sentenced to death on the gallows. The judgment of the lower court was upheld by the supreme court, but the sentence was finally commuted to life imprisonment.

Flanders died from poison, doctors testified, and when Dr. McNaughton was arraigned before a jury, some of the ablest medical talent in the United States testified for and against him. Since his pardon, more than two years ago, Dr. McNaughton has been engaged in the practice of medicine in Atlanta. While serving his sentence at the prison farm at Milledgeville he devoted a large part of his time to medical work in behalf of his fellow prisoners.

Jazz Minstrels To Entertain Crippled Children Tonight

The Georgia Jazz minstrels, composed of a body of 25 young men of Atlanta, and directed by "Buck" Smith, a popular Atlanta black-face comedian, will entertain for the crippled children of the Scottish Rite hospital in the boys' ward at 8:15 o'clock tonight. The minstrel show consists of jokes, song hits and monologues in the opening chorus. The second act features several specialties composed of songs, dances, monologues and instrumental music. The closing act leads its audience back to the scene of the old plantation, where "Old Black Joe" and "Aunt Dinah" are living in peace and contentment with their little "ickaninny," "Pop-Eye."

The Georgia Jazz minstrels will show again at the John B. Gordon school, on Metropolitan avenue, East Atlanta, Thursday night under the auspices of the Junior Wesley class of the Martha Brown Memorial church.

FURTHER BULLETINS ON KING IMPROBABLE

London, February 24.—Owing to King George's steadily improving condition, further bulletins probably will not be issued by his physicians.

His Majesty's convalescence has reached the point where he can leave his bed. A final bulletin may be issued to assure the public that all danger has passed.

The king may see the conclusion of the Mediterranean maneuvers of the British fleet during his cruise. The maneuvers are scheduled to begin March 11 and to continue until March 21. The king and queen hope to arrive at Cannes by rail on March 16.

FORMER EMPEROR OF CHINA ESCAPES DRESSED AS GUARD

Peking, February 24.—Hsuan Tung, former emperor of China, has slipped away from his refuge in the Japanese legation and is quartered at the Yamato hotel at Tien-Tsin. Hsuan is believed to be on the way to the realization of his ambition to visit Japan and the United States.

The youth's two wives left the legation several hours after Hsuan, according to an official announcement. They are expected to join their husband at Tien-Tsin.

Hsuan left the legation secretly, dressed as a legation guard. He sought refuge there following his expulsion from the imperial palace last year.

Marceline's Funny Antics Furnish Day of Joy For Crippled Inmates of Scottish Rite Home

Group of children at Scottish Rite home for crippled youngsters who enjoyed private performance Tuesday by Marceline, great jester. The clown is shown in the swing, surrounded by children.

East of Atlanta is a beautiful palace built by kind men just for children—the Scottish Rite Home for Crippled Children.

It is spacious and comfortable and in it are playrooms and toys and everything to make children happy. In it are hundreds of little children who are princes and princesses of pain.

Into the palace Tuesday went Marceline, the jester, the funny little fellow who always smiles.

He had been in other palaces before, palaces of kings and queens in Europe, where there are happy little princes and princesses.

Kind men who love the little people in the palace, east of Atlanta.

Build in Beautiful

took him out there to see the children.

In the same wig and same shiny nose and the clown he skipped and hopped about and made funny faces for the little ones.

They forgot bent limbs and twisted backs for the hour. Their pale faces were wreathed in smiles and they laughed as children laugh who are not afflicted.

And Marceline cavorted about as though he had never a care, as though his heart were light as a summer cloud and he laughed as the children laughed.

The hour was over and the kind men took Marceline and many of the little children away from the palace in an automobile.

They were going to the theater where Mrs. Clifford Walker, wife of the governor of Georgia, and Manager Tom Jones had prepared a special entertainment for as many of the youngsters as science had been able to restore to partial health.

Behind them followed other automobiles with the children. They were rattling jolly over Mr. James' promise to let them go into the wonderful backstage and pet the ponies and do other things that only princes and princesses can do.

helped arrange the party were chatting briskly as the leading car sped toward Atlanta, trying to drive from their minds the wistfulness and hopelessness.

Marceline, the funny man, was standing on his short stubby legs looking back through the window of the car, silent.

Suddenly all became silent. Marceline was making funny faces at a laughing child in the car behind.

But his funny little face was wet with tears.

BANK CONSOLIDATION MADE AT AMERICUS

Americus, Ga., February 24.—(Special.)—The Planters' Bank of Americus today consummated the purchase of all assets and assumed all liabilities of the Empire Bank of Americus.

All Empire bank depositors will be paid in full on demand at the Planters' bank or they may transfer their deposits to the Planters' bank.

The liquidation was effective today, after negotiations had been in progress about 20 days.

Liquidation of the Empire bank was thought advisable largely because of the legal necessity of selling stock in the bank held by the estate of the late George D. Ellis, founder and first president of the bank, and for the additional reason that R. C. Ellis, vice president, is desirous of giving his entire time to the Empire Loan and Trust company, of which he is president.

The transaction is not a forced sale but purely a liquidation, officials of both banks state.

Monday state bank examiners went over the books of the Empire bank and announced everything in splendid condition. H. L. Mize is president of the Empire bank. The consolidation leaves Americus with only two banks.

When Roman numerals were used, before the use of figures, all figuring was done with the abacus.

Police Chief, Mayor Seized In Booze Raid

Bicknell, Ind., February 24.—Almost complete paralysis of Bicknell's administrative and executive departments threw the town into turmoil Tuesday as deputy United States marshals arrested the mayor, the chief of police and six other prominent citizens on charges of conspiracy to violate the national prohibition laws.

The 8,000 inhabitants of this mining town are already aligned on opposite sides in what promises to be a sizeable controversy. The mayor and the chief declare that they will fight the case to the highest court.

The charges arose from the fact that Mayor William Callahan and Chief of Police Purley, together with the six prominent citizens, are members of the Eagles and Moose lodges here, which federal authorities charge ran wide-open bars.

Callahan and his chief will continue to direct law enforcement in Bicknell, they declare. They cannot be removed under the Indiana statutes unless convicted and actually sentenced, and both officials say they will "sit tight."

Friends of the mayor charge that the arrests resulted from efforts of political enemies to "get Callahan's goat," while the drags of Bicknell hail the arrests as beginning a long-needed cleanup of the city.

SOUTHERN COTTON OIL TO MOVE TO ORLEANS

New Orleans, February 24.—Purchase of the entire capital stock, 200,000 shares, of the Southern Cotton Oil company by R. S. Hecht and A. D. Geoghegan, of New Orleans, representing a southern syndicate, which was confirmed in federal district court at Newark, N. J., today, means that headquarters of the concern will be moved from New York to New Orleans. It was announced tonight in a statement by Mr. Hecht.

The stock was purchased for $8,875,000 from the Virginia-Carolina

Chemical company, which is in the hands of receivers, and Mr. Hecht's statement said that the Southern Cotton Oil company had also been placed in receivers' hands because the chemical company's having been disposed, but that now the cotton oil company would be entirely divorced from the chemical company and that "when our plans are fully carried out it will be a $20,000,000 concern." The Southern Cotton Oil company, which manufactures cottonseed oil products, operates 50 plants throughout the southern states, including one at Gretna, a suburb of New Orleans. Mr. Hecht is president of the Hibernia Bank and Trust company of New Orleans, and Mr. Geoghegan is president of the Southport Mills of New Orleans. ## LAWS TO PREVENT LYNCHINGS URGED

Enactment of an effective anti-lynching law, provision of a state institution for delinquent colored girls, survey of housing conditions, and securing for colored people more adequate educational advantages, better conditions of travel, and justice in the courts, are among the immediate objectives set by the Georgia committee on interracial cooperation at its annual meeting at the Central Y. M. C. Tuesday morning and afternoon.

Sixty committee members were present from every section of the state—ministers, educators, business and professional men, social workers and club women. Bishop F. E. Reese, of Savannah, chairman, presided.

Reviewing the present status of the interracial movement E. Marvin Underwood, local attorney, stated that in his judgment Georgia and the South are being more favorably advertised to the world by this movement than in any other way. It has been a gradual, but not unsteady, progress, educational, moral and religious lines to the advantage of both races, he said.

Speaking for the colored group, Rev. R. E. Bryant, pastor of First Street Baptist church, expressed warm appreciation of the committee's efforts to promote interracial understanding and justice. He paid a high tribute to the late John J. Egan and to the group of Atlanta citizens who, after the riot of 1907, inaugurated the plan of conference and cooperation, out of which the general interracial movement has grown.

Colonel A. R. Lawton, of Savannah, expressed the opinion that the effort for more effective legislation against lynching should be kept up. By unanimous vote the executive committee was instructed to work for the enactment of a bill giving the governor power to displace any sheriff who permits a lynching to take place in his jurisdiction. Such laws, it was pointed out, are in effect in Alabama and other states.

School funds.

Dr. T. J. Wofford, Jr., declared that many counties are diverting from the support of white schools educational funds received from the state on the basis of colored school population. The total so diverted in the whole state, amounted to several hundred thousand dollars a year, he said. The executive committee was instructed to give these facts to the public in pamphlet form and through the press. John A. Maudslai, Bishop Reese, Burr Blackburn and others made a vigorous arraignment of negro housing conditions, pointing out that negro rental property is often unfit for human habitation and yet pays a higher return on investment than any other class of property. The committee was instructed to get all the facts possible with regard to these conditions, that they may be brought to the attention of authorities and the public.

It was decided that the annual meeting of the state committee should be held in Atlanta each year during the week of the Southeastern fair.

Record Is Asked Upon Shipments Of Typhoid Germs

Chicago, February 24.—Chief Justice Harry Olson, of the municipal court, today wrote the national laboratory at Washington, requesting a record of shipments of typhoid germs from the laboratory to Chicago within two months prior to the death of William Nelson McClintock, "millionaire orphan."

Judge Olson and the Chicago police are investigating a theory that McClintock's death was caused by typhoid inoculation.

A communication received by Judge Olson today advised him to get in touch with Dr. E. W. Walsh, New York lawyer, saying he had valuable information. The letter did not disclose that Mr. Walsh was believed to have, it was recalled, that several years ago Walsh defended a Kansas City physician of committing murder by means of typhoid inoculation.

Subpoenas will be issued today for a number of new witnesses, Judge Olson said. The McClintock inquest will be resumed tomorrow.

SWEDEN MOURNS BRANTING'S DEATH

Stockholm, February 24.—Flags were at half mast throughout the country today in honor of Hjalmar Branting, former premier, who died shortly after noon. All classes of people, opponents and followers, expressed their regret at the passing of one who was regarded as among Sweden's greatest statesmen. Branting had been ill for several weeks.

One of the political effects of his death is expected to be the development of a tension—if not a complete split—within the ranks of the socialist party, which has been held together by the great force of Branting's personality. The opinion was expressed today that it was unlikely a successor could be found who could exercise a similar influence.

Ill Nearly Three Months.
The former premier had been ill since November 30, when he contracted influenza. At the time he expected to go to the League of Nations conference in Geneva, he later contracted thrombosis and on January 24, resigned as premier. Little hope of his survival has been held out since February 8, when gall-stone trouble appeared.

He is survived by a widow, Anna Branting, who, for 40 years, has been well known as an authoress. He has a daughter, a lawyer, a son, George, a lawyer, a daughter, Sonja, also a lawyer, and a brother, Axel, a journalist.

Even Enemies Respected.
The reaction to Branting's death in all political camps, as reflected by the afternoon papers, is remarkable and unanimous. The ultra conservative "Aftonbladet" declared that the leader of its former political opponent, writes: "He was a real patriot and his guiding star was his pure idealism."

The socialist leader and party leader, Zeta Hoeglund, one of Branting's bitterest antagonists in other directions, summed up his opinion thus: "Lucidity of style, logic of thought and weight of opinion were his qualities as a writer, while his political judgment, theoretical knowledge and devotion to his cause gave him the position as leader."

SLEW HER SISTER TO OPEN UP GATES OF HEAVEN TO HER

Paris, February 24.—"I killed her because I wanted to open the gates of heaven to her," said Anna Levasseur, a middle-aged dressmaker, who shot and killed her sister, Anais, on February 16, when she was arraigned before the investigating magistrate today charged with murder.

The woman explained that her sister was suffering from tuberculosis of an advanced stage and that she shot her to relieve her suffering. She denied that her act had been influenced by the killing by Mlle. Umiska, a Polish actress, of her fiancé to relieve him from the agony of an incurable disease. Mlle. Umiska recently was acquitted.

"I am a firm believer in the hereafter," declared Anna Levasseur today. "I have no fear of going to the Great Beyond to meet my sister if men sentence me to die."

The experts who have examined the woman say she is rational.

HOUGHTON NOMINATION CONFIRMED BY SENATE

Washington, February 24.—The nomination of Alanson B. Houghton, of New York, retiring ambassador to Germany, to be ambassador to Great Britain, was confirmed by the senate Tuesday night.

President Coolidge sent the nomination of Houghton to the senate Monday and the senate took the first opportunity to confirm it.

KANSAS SENATE LIFTS BAN UPON CIGARETTES

Topeka, Kan., February 24.—The state senate today passed a bill repealing the old law barring the sale of cigarettes in Kansas. The vote was 26 to 9. The measure now goes to the house.

The Kansas anti-cigarette law, adopted in 1900, prohibited the sale of cigarettes within the state. In recent years, however, the statute has not been rigidly enforced. The effect of the law has been to raise the retail price of a 15c package of cigarettes to 25c.

Kansas was one of the first states to place a ban on cigarettes.

SENATOR STANLEY INJURED BY AUTO

Washington, February 24.—A long succession of "hit-and-run" automobile casualties in Washington was capped today by the severe injury of a United States senator—A. O. Stanley, of Kentucky—by a speeding motor car which failed to stop after it had bowled him over at a street intersection in the business district.

At Emergency hospital, where the injured senator was taken by a passing taxicab, physicians found he had suffered from a badly lacerated face, a severely bruised shoulder and probably one or two fractured ribs. He was suffering considerably from body pains, but those in attendance expressed the opinion that he probably had not received severe internal injuries.

The accident occurred shortly after midnight, as the senator was going to his apartment on foot from a downtown hotel. Without warning, he reported to the police, a racing automobile bore down upon him and struck him directly in the path of an approaching street car. He escaped more serious injury by rolling over in the street.

Pedestrians assisted him to his feet and placed him in the taxicab which conveyed him to the hospital. "I thought the end had come," the senator said today at the hospital. "By some miracle, however, I was able to save myself from being run over by the street car. I saw it coming; tried to get to my feet, sagged at the knee and dropped the car. I thought of rolling myself off the tracks, and succeeded in doing so just in time to escape the passing street car."

"Hit-and-run" automobile injuries have become almost an every-day occurrence in the capital, and in the past few months there have been a number of marked increases in the resulting death toll that a vigorous effort is under way in congress to revise traffic regulations. Recently when the senate was debating a proposal to make jail sentences mandatory for those who fail to stop after an accident, Senator Stanley was among those who opposed such a provision as excessive punishment. He took the position that the legislation would impose on constitutional liberties.

FRENCH GOVERNMENT OPPOSES CONFERENCE

Paris, February 24.—(By The Associated Press.)—The French government and press are continuing to resist the campaign being staged in London in favor of an allied conference over the report on Germany's violations of military clauses of the treaty of Versailles returned recently by the allied control mission. The first thing in the regular order of procedure, it was declared in French official circles this morning, was for the allied war committee to present its conclusions on the report to the council of ambassadors and the various governments.

The natural course then, it was argued, would be for the ambassadors to meet and take up the control mission's report and the conclusions of the war committee simultaneously. It is only then, it was added, that the question of a conference may properly be raised.

"So much has been said against the use of motor medicines that I have had a strong prejudice against them. But after four years' doctoring with six different doctors, without results, for acute indigestion, gastric stagnation, appendicitis and other ailments, I was said to possess, I was encouraged to try Sloan's Wonderful Liniment, seeing what it had done for a friend similarly afflicted. I also was entirely relieved of my trouble, and am sure this medicine will do all that is claimed for it. It is a simple, harmless preparation that removes the catarrhal mucus from the intestinal tract and allays the inflammation which is usually at the stomach, liver and intestinal ailments, including appendicitis. ## French Decoration For Judge Clayton Blocked in House

Washington, February 24.—Representative Blanton, democrat, Texas, tonight blocked house consideration of a measure which would authorize the state department to deliver a French decoration and diploma to Federal Judge Henry D. Clayton, of Alabama. The bill, championed by Senator Underwood, of Alabama, was passed earlier in the day by the senate, 49 to 27, after attacks by Senator Borah, republican, Idaho, and Senator Lenroot, republican, Wisconsin.

CONFEREES AGREE ON POSTAL BILL

Washington, February 24.—A postal pay and rate increase bill in substantially the form as that passed by the house was agreed to today by conferees on the senate and house measures.

An agreement to retain the Walsh corrupt practices amendment as a rider to the postal pay and rate increase bill also was reached today by house and senate conferees. The amendment, which limits the amount of expenditures in senatorial and congressional campaigns and provides for periodic reports by all election committees, congressional, state and national, recently was introduced by the Borah campaign fund investigating committee.

After the house had refused to consider the original senate postal bill, it failed to include a corrupt practices amendment. The senate inserted it and the house managers yielded so that the house will have an opportunity, it is expected, to go on record on the subject.

The only important modification in the house measure was made in second-class rates, the conferees accepting some of the lower rates in this class carried in the senate bill.

In the form agreed to by the conferees the bill would increase postal salaries as of January 1, this year, and the rate increases would become effective next April 15.

WARREN'S NOMINATION REPORTED FAVORABLY

Washington, February 24.—The senate judiciary committee ordered a favorable report today on the nomination of Charles B. Warren, of Michigan, to be attorney general, but administration leaders said tonight that the committee was not in a hurry to report on Warren's nomination, legislative calendar, they again were undecided whether they would press for confirmation at this session.

The vote in the committee was 9 to 5, with 7 republicans and 2 democrats casting their ballots in favor of a favorable report to the senate, and 2 democrats and 2 republicans voting against a favorable report. One senator withheld his vote and another was absent.

Reiterating their expressions of confidence that Mr. Warren's nomination would be confirmed by the senate, leaders pointed to the vote in the committee as indicative of the extent to which opposition to the nomination has diminished. Herebefore, the committee had equally divided on the subject, and this counted in part for the failure to press for a vote earlier.

Senator Borah, Idaho, and Norris, Nebraska, the republicans opposing a favorable report in committee and Senator Overman, North Carolina, and Shields, Tennessee, the democrats voting for Mr. Warren. The democrats in opposition were Senator Ashurst, Arizona; Reed, Missouri; and Walsh, Montana. Opposing the nomination were Senator Cummings, Iowa; Sterling, South Dakota; Ernst, Kentucky; Shortridge, California; Spencer, Missouri; Butler, Massachusetts; and Means, Colorado.

Senator Butler, who is a close friend of President Coolidge, is to have charge of the nomination on the floor of the senate. The committee's report will be made probably tomorrow, and under the rules, it then must go over for a day before action can be asked.

CHIMNEY ROCK DAM CONTRACT AWARDED

Charlotte, N. C., February 24.—(Special.)—Contract for the construction of the Lake Lure dam and power plant at Chimney Rock, N. C., was awarded here today to John A. Gardner, of Charlotte, through the office of Mees & Mees, hydraulic engineers. It is stated that the cost of the dam and hydro-electric plant will aggregate approximately $675,000. A large number of contractors were represented at the letting of the contract, which is but the preliminary to the beginning of work in the creation of a great mountain lake resort covering more than 12 square miles in western North Carolina.

Dr. L. B. Morse, president of Chimney Rock Mountains, incorporated, was present at the signing of the contract, which completes one of the last details in the first stage of the vast development heretofore announced. The lake created by this dam will cover 1,500 acres, itself is to be 104 feet high and 500 feet long, being anchored between two mountains, which form the Rocky Broad gorge.

Fifteen months will be required to complete the dam and impound the lake, according to Mr. Gardner, and full equipment, including generators, turbines and other machinery, will be placed immediately and construction of camp to house 200 or more workers begun shortly.

BRIDE THROWS ACID IN EYES OF HUSBY, THEN TRIES SUICIDE

Chicago, February 24.—Darby A. Day, Sr., prominent business man and social leader, left here tonight for California, after learning that his son, Darby A., Jr., had been partially blinded by acid thrown by his bride of six months, who immediately after the act unsuccessfully attempted to commit suicide.

Both were taken to a hospital in Hollywood, where the act occurred. A message said the daughter-in-law was out of danger and physicians were hopeful of saving the son's sight. The younger Mr. Day was prominent in the younger social circles in Chicago. The marriage of the young couple was a surprise here.

AIRCRAFT PROBES REOPEN HEARINGS

Washington, February 24.—After debating the matter in two executive sessions, the house aircraft committee today voted to reopen the aircraft investigation, which it abruptly terminated Saturday.

Members said an apparent lack of funds caused the termination of the inquiry, but that an audit of the committee's accounts showed sufficient money remaining to complete the work that had been mapped out for the few days remaining before the adjournment of congress March 4.

Coinciding with the committee's action today, Representative Wainwright, of New York, a republican member of the house military affairs committee, announced that subcommittees of the military and naval affairs committees expected to meet in joint session early in the next congress to discuss the nation's air defense.

Mr. Wainwright, a former assistant secretary of war, as chairman of a special aeronautics sub-committee, decided at a recent conference to postpone any action until after members had been given an opportunity to study the report of the present aircraft committee.

Mr. Wainwright said today that if a thorough survey of the problems of the air defense was found advisable, the matter might be taken up jointly by the two committees and subcommittees of the senate military and naval committees.

Mr. Swing also pointed out today that the question of creating a unified air service undoubtedly would be brought up in the next congress, as it was practically certain that the Curry bill deemed to bring this about would be reintroduced in the new congress. Hearings on this bill have been held at the present session by the military committee.

The committee instructed Mr. Perkins to notify Secretaries Weeks and Wilbur that it would be glad to receive any additional information on aircraft that the war and navy departments might desire to present.

QUARTET DID NOT DAMAGE HIS CAFE, SAYS EASTERWOOD

J. H. Easterwood Tuesday stated that the quartet of singers, whose peregrinations Monday night included a trip to his cafe at 685 East Fair street, had caused no damage in his place of business.

The constitution carried a story of the police report on the conduct of the quartet. It was stated that the four men had enjoyed a meal at the restaurant, refused to pay for it, and had created considerable disorder when the proprietor insisted on payment. Mr. Easterwood stated that the men bought some groceries at his place, but did not eat a meal there. The four men were arrested on drunk and disorderly charges.

CHICAGO ELECTION MARKED BY RIOTS

Chicago, February 24.—Most of Chicago's 50 aldermen were re-elected today and seven bond issues totaling $13,500,000 were approved in an election in which only about one-third of the city's qualified electorate participated. Upward of 500,000 voters went to the polls, whereas a vote of more than 600,000 had been anticipated.

The election day was featured throughout by disorders and kidnappings and ended in the theft of a ballot box and the shooting of one of four men who attempted to kidnap a precinct clerk.

The main issue in the election was Mayor Dever's plan for the city to take over the street railway and elevated lines by purchase. In several wards, where this issue was prominent, no candidate succeeded in obtaining a clear majority and the two highest candidates will fight it out at the polls on April 7.

He had served as dean since 1902 and had held the Boylston chair since 1904. This is one of the oldest professorships in Harvard, having been endowed in 1711.

Professor Clifford Herschel Moore, chairman of the committee on instruction in Harvard college and teacher of the classics, was selected to succeed Dean Briggs as head of the faculty of arts and sciences.

WEST POINT FUNERAL FOR J. E. CHANDLER

The body of J. Elmer Chandler, 21, of 24 McKenzie drive, who died Tuesday in a private hospital, was taken Tuesday afternoon to West Point with Harry G. Poole in charge.

Mr. Chandler formerly was a student at Mercer university and is a brother of R. E. "Parson" Chandler, Mercer comedian and singer. W. L. Chandler, a brother, is chief train dispatcher of Atlanta division of the Central of Georgia railroad.

In addition to his two brothers, he is survived by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. P. Chandler; another brother, H. E. Chandler, of Atlanta, and three sisters, Miss Donna Chandler and Mrs. L. H. Barrow, both of West Point, and Mrs. W. C. Monk, of Dallas, Texas.

Tons of dried files, used in the making of paints, are imported from Cuba and Mexico. They are really cochineal insects and yield scarlet and crimson dyes.

Members said an apparent lack of funds caused the termination of the inquiry, but that an audit of the committee's accounts showed sufficient money remaining to complete the work that had been mapped out for the few days remaining before the adjournment of congress March 4.

TRAFFIC CRIMES.

There have been an unusually large number of automobile accidents in Atlanta, in the past few days. It has been little short of an epidemic.

Some of these accidents may have been unavoidable, but most of them have been due to recklessness. Some, if the allegations of drunkenness are true, have been criminal in the most aggravated degree.

One driver, according to charges docketed against him, reeled his car along crowded thoroughfares in such a morbidly drunk fashion that several other cars were collided with, at least one of which was parked on the side of the curb. It does not help the situation any that he reported that his wife, with him at the time, was also arrested for being intoxicated.

During the past week several lives in Georgia have been sacrificed to accidents on the streets and highways. Other victims of these accidents are in hospitals hovering between life and death.

When bootleg hooch and an automobile steering wheel are brought into contact the result is tragedy; and, according to the number involved, infinitely worse than war.

The Constitution has repeatedly urged more rigid laws to cope with this growing evil. The man caught drunk at the wheel of an automobile ought to be prosecuted for a felony, and he should be deprived thereafter of the privilege of driving an automobile. It is not sufficient to wait until a tragedy has occurred any more than it is sufficient to wait until a would-be murderer has killed his victim before being arrested. The very fact that a drunken driver is operating an automobile on a street or highway is evidence enough that a tragedy will occur sooner or later, if permitted to go on.

Recklessness on the part of a sober driver is almost as bad. Indeed, a reckless driver is not "sober." He may be insofar as intoxicating liquors go, but he is anything but sober in judgment, and in the actions that result from a degraded judgment. "Sound" and the reckless driver is not "sound."

Such a driver, whether old or young, operating his own car, or a hired chauffeur, should be denied by law the privilege of driving a car. If such a legal stoppage from menacing the highways is violated, then he should be given a penitentiary sentence.

Human life and human limbs are too sacred to have them menaced by drunken and reckless automobile drivers.

The forthcoming Georgia legislature should deal with this problem with vigor, and with an earnest determination to make the streets and highways as safe as humanly possible.

THE GASOLINE HIKE. Attorney General Napier condemns the rapidly advancing price of gasoline to consumers, and says it is "fearful" and "unwarranted."

So does every citizen of Georgia! But what are we going to do about it?

The attorney general is a member of a national committee of attorneys general appointed many months ago to "take action" to regulate the price of gasoline.

What action has been taken? If any, then why should Georgians, without any good, unassailable reason, be called upon to contribute millions of dollars a year to the one gasoline supply source over and above a fair and reasonable price based on supply and demand?

Georgia gasoline consumers are paying a total of around $200,000 a week more for gasoline than they paid two months ago, and for what cause?

The storage supply is equal to ordinary at this season, even accounting increased demand. The increased production is keeping pace with the increased consumption. The outlook supply is as good or better than ever.

Just arbitrary advances! Isn't that all?

Why hasn't the committee of attorneys general taken some definite action before this?

Why hasn't gasoline been placed under the regulation of the federal and state utility commissions?

THE ONLY WAY! On this page is a communication from former Councilman J. L. McCord that rings true.

He has had wide experience in city government and in meeting the demands of a city's growth.

He analyzes the present situation in Atlanta with remarkable cleverness and draws his conclusions with a logic that is unchallengeable.

He sees that we must expand. The remarkable growth of the city makes it imperative.

He notes with satisfaction the approval of trade and civic bodies of the recommendations made as a result of a recent and comprehensive survey.

And then he asks—a very natural question—what good will all of these resolutions do unless some practical plan is accepted by which the results sought may be obtained.

Can these expansions—even those immediately necessary—be made on the "pay-as-you-go" plan without an abnormal increase in taxes?

Emphatically no! There is no argument in the premises.

Then what? Capitalize Atlanta's credit, and let the future help pay for improvements to be built for the future as well as the present.

It is the only way—And in being the only way, it is also the sound, the sensible, the fair way.

It doesn't get us anywhere to merely say the "Beeler plan," or any part of the Beeler plan, should be instituted at once, when there is no money available for the purpose.

And yet the improvements—or some of them—must be made at once. We must have more schools.

We must have more traffic arteries. We must revise and enlarge our water system. We must widen and extend some streets. And so on!

How? By increasing taxes? Never!

By utilizing the city's credit facilities, as every big business does when it faces an expansion necessity?

Why, certainly! Read what former Councilman McCord says about it.

THE SOUTHEASTERN FAIR. The dinner Tuesday evening to Oscar Mills, retiring president, accented Atlanta's and Georgia's great interest in the Southeastern fair.

Speakers emphasized the importance of this annual event to all of the state's material interests, and especially to the farming and live stock interests.

The fact is, the Southeastern fair is nothing less than an agricultural university, with an intensive training course of ten days that is incomparable in its usefulness.

The keen interest shown in the boys and girls' clubs of the state, in the lectures, demonstrations, exhibits, grading and awarding and all the features of agriculture and animal husbandry, make it far more than an exposition, and an occasion of entertainment. It is all of these, and more—much more.

Congratulations to Oscar Mills and all others who have contributed so signally to the great success of this institution!

And in the new president, Colonel Fred Paxton, the continued success of the fair is assured, for there is in Georgia no more virile force for construction, no better organizer, no more progressive citizen.

That "next war" talk doesn't go with the chap who is paying his income tax.

A great man on a hobby horse is not a dignified figure, but safety first best dignity.

And think how popular a peach-and-honey festival would be.

It seems that the bandit and burglar society has increased its membership.

Paul Revere would never have made it on an electric hobby horse.

Just From Georgia

BY FRANK L. STANTON

One Bird A-Singing.
I. One bird a-singing With more than lover's art, Clear the song is ringing— "Sweetheart! Sweetheart!"

II. Whither are you straying From your love apart, Long and long delaying— "Sweetheart! Sweetheart!"

III. Heading not Love's praying, Tears unbidden start . . . Shall we not go a-maying Once more, Sweetheart?

A Note of It. Advice from Judd Mortimer Lewis, in The Houston Post-Disciple: "Don't park your car on a railroad right-of-way while you take a nap; if you do you are liable for whatever happens to the first locomotive that strikes you."

"The Road to Corn Pone." Here's an appetizing George Bailey paragraph— "The Cleveland Plain Dealer rejoices that Johnny Cake Raisin is to be paved. We wish the road to Corn Pone and 'Hoecake' was paved, but whether it is or we intend to travel it whenever we happen to be on it, because we know that where Corn Pone and Hoecake are there are fried chicken, pollock and turnip greens also."

To a Set of Oriental Blooms. (That would not bloom.) I. In some far land, at some far day, I doubt not that they bloomed quite fair, And with their fragrance perfumed The Oriental air.

II. But here so far from home, I know They set themselves quite out of place; Small wonder that they did not grow— Strange members of an alien race.

III. Ah, well, I cannot blame them much; Somehow I feel that I— Transplanted far from home and friends, Might also pine and die! —DAVID EDWARD UNGAR, Atlanta.

In the Old Home. This charming lyric, entitled "Ghost," is by James K. McGuinness, in Liberty.

"Empty the old house looms, Is it the wind astir, Solemn in sluttish close; Yet in the gloom blooms, Love-like still, a rose.

"Soft in the evening's hush Is the wind astir, Rustles beside the bush, Or the silk gown of Her?"

Spring's Advent. The Albany Herald, an undoubted authority on Spring, has this comforting editorial paragraph— "Tough trees are blossoming. So are other fruit trees. The woods are full of violets. The maples are waving red greetings to spring. The grass is out, and fishermen report great luck. All the signs indicate that winter is about to be sidetracked."

The Fabric. I have woven a shining mantle Of gossamer, golden threads, With mystic and marvelous pattern; Behold it, for you, outspread!

Oh, 'tis a fabric, finer Than the tissues of a landmark! 'Tis warm as the softest shawl, Or a kiss, in the palm of your hand.

Its warp and its woof are the moments I pilfered of Love, for my own. The pattern is of life's forebodings. That fell when his bright wings had flown.

Enwrought in my shining mantle, (Though you were a beggar forlorn) You shall walk in more princely raiment Than Harun-al-Raschid had worn. —JEAN GRAHAM, Atlanta.

Says Brother Williams. Looks like God made de world 'special' for folks ter grow at, less they fer grow like day wid born so, and it's expected of 'em.

Stone Hails Return of Old "Atlanta Spirit" Editor Constitution: It is evident that the Atlanta Spirit is about to be revived and put to work for a Greater Atlanta. Your great paper sounded the tocsin "Build for Tomorrow," and it is now up to every citizen to fall into step for the expansion of the city, industrially, commercially and along all other lines.

All three of Atlanta's great newspapers are united in this tremendous movement of civic expansion, and it is now up to our influential civic organizations to join in the support of the movement.

With the Beeler plan, now before the city council, as a starting point, there should be no more day-dreaming, no more lost motion. The time has come for action and every citizen with the good of Atlanta at heart, should join in the support of this plan.

Let's clear up the transportation problem at once, then proceed to make Atlanta a beautiful, progressive and prosperous city. As citizens interested in the future, as well as the present Atlanta, we are ready to aid in every possible way.

watching Russian penetration in Asia," says Mr. Chamberlain, colonial secretary for England, which means that the British empire is again facing the "Bear who walks like a man."

The Bubbling Pot. The Balkan peninsula, sometimes described as "the powder magazine of Europe," is again living up to its name. Bulgarian cantilatas, irregularly armed bands, and their equipment and munitions from the government, according to neutral observers, are carrying out systematic raids in the kingdom of Serbia, Montenegro and Greece, better known as Jugo-Slavia, have lodged a protest with the league. The Balkan states want Macedonia back. The raids and other signs of anarchy in Bulgaria have sufficiently recovered from the effects of the great war to commence his career of trouble making in the Balkans. The Balkan states have a revolution recently and established a republic. The affair came close to embroiling several other Balkan states, which were "watched with unusual interest," to quote Signor Mussolini. When the Greek metropolis was expelled from the Balkans, the Greek parliament demanded a recourse to arms "to wipe out the Turkish infamy." Rumania is "keenly alive to the potential danger of the return of the Wranza fleet to the bolsheviks. For Rumania is not so secure in the possession of Bessarabia. The whole Balkan situation is becoming more and more dangerous ever before 1914. A casual belli could be found without a great deal of search among the nations there. It's only a matter of time before the Balkan council of Britain and France, upheld by the league of nations, "that is maintaining peace. How long the warlike passions, international intrigues and miniature imperialism can be restrained no one is able to foretell.

Riviera Of America. If, as Mr. Karl Kitcher rightly observes, Palm Beach is superior to Cannes, Biarritz, St. Germain and Scheveningen, a watering resort, the state of Florida as a whole must be regarded as going after the crown and laurels of the French Riviera. The state of Florida is a state of the future, with automobiles conveying Americans and Canadians of the temperate northern zones to the beneficent warmth of a state, in which the sun alone suggests flowers and luxuriant natural beauty. The most satisfactory feature about the visitors to Florida is the fact that the rich and the poor enjoy its charms. For among the automobile caravans there are make-shift homes in which the migrants live and have their being. Yet the foreign tourists find their attractions. Palm Beach, despite an occasional Englishman, still lacks the cosmopolitan flavor, so articulate and so full of life, which is abroad. The exodus to the southern state this year, however, is teaching the natives of this country one thing and that, that America has a scenic grandeur, wondrous vistas, coral beaches and palm groves. The slogan, "See America First," is not only a patriotic slogan, but a practical one. The state of Florida is not only a state of the future, but a state of the present. # Daredevil "Runner" Defies Death To Deliver "Load"

GEORGIA MOUNTAIN BOY LOSES RACE

BY PAUL STEVENSON.

The title of "Daredevil, danger-defying, death-defying demon of all run runners," if there be such honorable title, ought to go to Jimmie Larmon, a north Georgia mountain boy. Jimmie's recent desperate attempts to bring slinking funds for the thirst of Atlanta entitled him to some kind of a title even though he did come to grief, according to information obtained from Fred Dismukes, federal prohibition director.

In the latest episode, Jimmie left the environments of Canton Monday with a light car and "a load" bound for Atlanta, officers state. Eager-eyed Lon Adair, federal agent, spied Jimmie up in Cherokee county and immediately gave chase.

Desperate Chase. The chase deserves a paragraph to itself. It began in one county, lasted all through another large county, passed through several cities, towns and villages and finally ended in a third county. The beginning was in Cherokee and Jimmie sped across the border into Cobb. On into Marietta, past the central figure in another thrilling the court house and out to the pavements of Atlanta street sped Jimmie. Lon Adair was right behind. Past along the paved highway, through Smyrna like a streak, a shot across the Chattahoochee bridge, up the hill to Bolton, a flash past the stationer to bring slinking funds for the thirst of Atlanta entitled him to some kind of a title even though he did come to grief, according to information obtained from Fred Dismukes, federal prohibition director.

Officers Adair and Roper confiscated 20 gallons of "good licker" and took Jimmie into custody. On examination it was found that Larmon was out of jail with a suspended sentence hanging over him in Cobb county on a charge of violating the prohibition law and he was taken to that county to finish a year's time there. After this sentence is served he will be brought to Atlanta to face a federal charge, according to Mr. Dismukes.

Steps on the Gas. About one month ago Jimmie was episode, according to information furnished by his agents, Jimmie was bringing in a "load" and speeding along a road in Macon county. He saw a heavy automobile in the road which had been placed there by prohibition agents. Jimmie did not even hesitate. He stepped on the gas and crashed into the heavy car with his light flier and there was a great smash-up. Jimmie's car overturned and he caught on fire, and officers saved his life. He finally was extricated from the debris and several gallons of liquor were confiscated. "I thought it was a road hog, so I just tried to teach him a lesson," Jimmie told the officers after the smash.

Larmon was out under bond for this offense, when he was caught by Officer Adair Monday.

MAURICE WEEPS AS PARTNER WEDS

zether for three years. She was only getting $50 a week when I got her and I jumped her up to $1,500. This is awful, awful."

A policeman came dashing up crying "My gosh, the dam has burst," but saw that it was only Maurice weeping at a manly cry, and went away, fording a few creeks of brine.

There was something in Maurice's complaint, at that time, that he was trained Joan Sawyer to glide, skip, twirl and twiddle in perfect rhythm with him, she quit him to get married.

Maurice thought he had circumvented matrimony's jinx upon his act when he married his next dancing partner, himself, figuring that the good wife certainly wouldn't marry out of the act, anyway. But again the wedding march disrupted his professional organization, for this particular woman, who had married him after a few seasons, and her services were lost. In this case, matrimony led to divorce and Maurice had to find a new partner, Leonora Hughes.

The get-away from the chapel was a strangely unconventional exodus, for Maurice, still leaking a gentle seepage of tears, got into the bride's car with her and rode off, spraying Fifth avenue like a sprinkling cart, and Don Carlos and so forth, the bridegroom, followed at a tactful distance in a vulgar hack.

Leonora, whose beauty is said to have driven a prominent New York banker into a Connecticut manse, will go to California with her husband and thence sail for South America.

VALUES IN HOUSTON AIDED BY BEELER PLAN

the Atlantans and on a tour conducted personally by Houston officials, they visited every point of vantage from which they might glean ideas of the immensity of the improvement brought about by putting into effect of the Beeler plan.

A feature of the inspection was a trip down the Houston port channel, which connects the port of Houston with Galveston bay, and provides a route by which the largest of ocean liners may reach the municipal docks here owned and operated by the city of Houston. After dinner at the San Jacinto inn, on the site of the historic battle in which Texas won its freedom from Mexico and became a republic, the party returned to the city by automobile, stopping to visit the new deepwater plant of the Houston Lighting and Power company. A trip across the city in one of the one-man street cars completed the day's activities.

Leave Houston Tonight.

The Atlanta delegation plans to spend another day in Houston, leaving here Wednesday night on the return trip. The party will arrive in New Orleans Tuesday night, and after spending that day in a further investigation of traffic conditions in New Orleans, will leave on the last leg of the journey Thursday night, arriving in Atlanta Friday morning.

The most sweeping change in the entire city is elimination of all street car tracks from Main street, the principal business thoroughfare of the city. Main street at present presents what is probably the most beautiful street from the angle of a traffic expert that has been seen on the entire trip. The street now stretches entirely across the city without a single curve or turn, and its width is more than 12 miles, and its best feature is the fact that it has not a single street-car track.

The street is 80 feet from curb to curb, and minus car tracks, presents a boulevard over which vehicular traffic flows with a smoothness that is almost unbelievable. The street is wide enough to permit two rows of traffic going in each direction, and the parallel parking lot is not in effect.

One-Man Car System.

Adoption of the Beeler plan also meant many changes in the entire street railway system, chief among them being introduction of the one-man car. The trial has proven so successful that at present 90 per cent of all Houston's cars are operated by single men. When the proposition was voiced to the plan when it was proposed, the great swelling of traffic which resulted, has effectively quieted any protest.

Fares are deposited in a box, and patrons enter and leave the cars from the same door. Officials of the street railway company state that the one-man car are paid higher salaries than motormen and than conductors formerly, but claim that results have more than made up for the pay advance. The brand the system an unqualified success, and plan to extend it to all cars.

Elimination of jitneys from Main street was the first step taken in putting the Beeler plan into effect. That was accomplished in much the same course taken by Atlanta city council early this month, when Atlanta's anti-jitney ordinance was adopted. About a year previously, Houston had voted to permit jitneys, but late in 1925, following submission of the Beeler report, another referendum reversed the first decision, and barred all jitneys operating parallel to car tracks.

Bus Line Plan.

The next step was creation of bus lines, operated by the street railway company in coordination with the car system. At present, there are three such lines, with 24 large buses in daily service. The railway company is contemplating opening of a fourth route within 90 days, which would necessitate addition of at least a dozen buses.

The buses serve only sections not reached by street cars, and do not parallel street car tracks within two blocks at any point. Seven cent fares are charged on both buses and cars, and free interchangeable transfers are issued, so that a passenger may transfer from a car to a bus without additional cost. Two sizes of buses are in use, the smallest of which has a minimum seating capacity of 20 persons.

A general revision and reouting of car routes, together with elimination of unnecessary stops, also were put into effect here in accordance with recommendations of the Beeler organization. The city has direct supervision of all public utilities, and may order any changes in street car service thought necessary, as well as having similar power over other utilities, including gas, lighting and telephone service.

The synchronized system of traffic signal lights proposed for Atlanta, also is in effect here. Three colored lights are used—red, green and amber, the amber constituting a warning signal which is designed to clear the intersection of pedestrians.

Many Civic Improvements.

In addition to changes in the street railway system, many civic improvements, aside from removal of cars from Main street, have been put into effect here. Polk avenue, a traffic artery which reaches from one boundary of the city to the other and which runs diagonally to Main street has been widened on its entire length. Similar steps are planned on Texas avenue, a cross-town street which runs parallel to Polk avenue, and the Central fire station already has been removed from that street preparatory to starting work.

City officials are unanimous in expressions of approval of the Beeler plan, and every one of his recommendations already has been put into effect, or are being worked on now. The rise in property values, as well as much of the extensive construction work now going on here, is attributed directly to the success of the Beeler plan by Mayor Holcombe.

Among the new buildings now under construction are a new city auditorium, to seat 6,000, a large hotel annex, a new newspaper plant, and many other large buildings, a majority of which are being erected on Main street.

Favor Recommendations.

Practically all recommendations made by Beeler here also have been advised for Atlanta, and the Atlanta officials are overjoyed at the prospect, to a new newspaper plant, and many other large buildings, a majority of which are being erected on Main street.

While Houston's docks have no doubt already solved the problem, they certainly are worthy of mention. The docks, which, with railroad facilities, cost approximately $8,000,000, are owned and operated by the city, and pay a handsome profit annually. The natural channel from the Gulf of Mexico has been widened and deepened at enormous cost, so that now ocean-going vessels of almost any size may steam up to the municipal docks to receive and discharge cargoes.

Much of Houston's prosperity is due directly to its port facilities, and this factor is expected to play an important part in the city's future development.

There are two processes continually taking place in your body? One is the building up of your BONE, BLOOD, NERVE and TISSUE, the other is the carrying off of the waste matter and impurities.

For every ounce of food you eat or liquid you drink, there is almost an ounce of waste matter that must be eliminated by the way of your KIDNEYS and BOWELS.

If your LIVER and KIDNEYS fail to do their duty, portions of this waste matter remain in your stomach and intestines where they ferment, sour and decay, causing INDIGESTION, SOUR STOMACH, KIDNEY TROUBLE, etc. These impurities are also taken up by your blood and carried to all parts of your system, causing a general run-down condition and IMPURE BLOOD.

NUX-HERBS AND IRON acts directly on your Liver, Kidneys and Bowels. It starts to work from the very first dose, does the work surely, safely and quickly. The very first few doses will give you a vim, vigor and vitality such as you have not known in years. It is not a temporary stimulant but is a lasting tonic and system builder.

You may eat or drink anything you wish while taking it. It is good for both men and women. If you are tired of taking medicine and paying doctor bills, get a bottle today. # ATLANTA CLUB WINS TIGHT CONTEST FROM B. A. C.

Entire Atlanta Outfit Figures in 31-24 Victory; Mandy Is High-Point Man

Teams From All Parts Of South Heading This Way for Gigantic Meet

BY ROY E. WHITE.

Work was started on the $2,000 S. I. C. basketball tournament court last night at midnight in the city auditorium by Gude & Co., contractors who have done the work for the past four years. The contract calls for the work to be completed by 6 o'clock tonight and from the way the work began last night indications are to the effect that the contract will be complied with.

With the starting of the court, where the playing will take place, everything seems to be moving along rapidly and all of the details are being smoothed out.

The tournament committee, composed of Al Doonan, Herman Stegman, W. A. Alexander and Willard Hutsell, has been on the job every minute during the past two days making ready for the fourth annual S. I. C. tournament which will start Thursday night at 7:30 o'clock with Virginia and South Carolina as the opening card.

Teams Expected Early

Teams will begin to arrive early Thursday morning, but the majority of the teams will arrive in the city late Thursday afternoon and early Friday morning as the big day will be Friday, when eight games will be played.

Telegraphic reports from Tusculum, Ala., received late yesterday afternoon, stated that the Crimson tide will leave Alabama tonight and arrive here early Thursday morning. South Carolina, Maryland, Virginia, V. P. L. and North Carolina are slated as among the early arrivals.

The Tech and A. C. court has been offered for practice to tournament teams during Thursday and Friday mornings. Play will start Friday afternoon at 1 o'clock.

There will be no practicing on the new floor until just a few minutes before game time and those teams coming from long distances will make use of the Tech and A. C. courts to get limbered up from the long ride.

BAMA MAKING NO PREDICTIONS

University, Ala., February 24.—

LaGrange, Ga., February 24.—(Special.)—LaGrange is planning to have everything in readiness for the annual Fourth District basketball tournament that is to be held here Thursday, Friday and Saturday. To date 14 teams are entered, including Columbus High, Columbus Industrial high, Carrollton, Woodbury, Senoia, Mount Zion, Buena Vista, Grantville, Hogansville, West Point, Waverly Hall, Chipley, Manchester and LaGrange. The pairings will be made Thursday morning prior to the opening game that afternoon.

The local team will enter the tournament without Duke Cassidy, star center, who received injuries while playing against Marshallville in the county tournament. It is thought that he will not be in shape to get in any of the contests.

SOLDIERS OPEN FORT BATTLING

Three of the snappiest four-round preliminary matches that have been offered for the entertainment of Atlanta ring fans will fill out the festive program that is to be staged at Fort McPherson on the night of March 4, according to announcement yesterday from Major Keeley, president of the Twenty-second Infantry Athletic association, which is promoting a "draw" event.

In the inaugural scrap at the fort a few weeks ago Major Keeley offered all-soldier preliminaries and it went with the favor of the fans. For one thing the soldiers do not know the word "quit" and they battled with furious energy from start to finish.

Larry Aver, southern junior welterweight champion, will meet Tanks Grantham, of Fort Benning, in the main event of 10 rounds, Irish Benny Cline, a Atlanta welterweight, will swap punches with Walling Wop, in the other 10-round attraction.

Avera will have little trouble to do for the fight, as he meets Rem Williams at Louisville, Ky., Friday night. This scrap at Louisville is featuring the winning of a new athletic club and the selection of Avera as one of the main events was quite a tribute to his rugged prowess.

Avera is right in the line of his career. He has been defeated only once in his last 25 starts and that was a questionable decision when by Young Jack Dillon. Sport writers of Nashville, where the fight was staged, joined hands with the fans in declaring that the worst that could have been given Avera was a "draw" verdict.

Grantham, according to reports from Columbus, is one man who can give Avera a whole of a fight. The weight for the scrap has been set at 142 pounds.

Mrs. Hentz Gives Lovely Reception For Miss Spalding

Ranking with the most brilliant affairs of the social season was the elaborate reception at which Mrs. Hal Hentz entertained Tuesday afternoon at the Piedmont Driving club, in compliment to her lovely debutante niece, Miss Mary Brown Spalding, charming daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Spalding.

The ballroom of the club presented a charming springtime scene, the tall, white columns throughout its length being entwined with garlands of southern smilax, the same vine extending in graceful ropes from the crystal candelabra to the side walls, where a note of color was introduced in the rich green cascades by myriads of golden yellow daffodils caught at intervals and mingled with handsome Japanese tulips.

The tea table, placed at one end of the ballroom, was covered with a cloth of imported lace, the central decoration being a platoon of tulips, sweet peas, snapdragons and jonquils, gathered from the gardens of the "Homestead," the ancestral home of the hostess. Small baskets of the same lovely blossoms, the handles tied with fluffy bows of Dresden-shaded tulle, were placed at intervals, alternating with yellow tapers burning in silver holders and small yellow tulip baskets filled with Dresden mints. Choice single tulips and jonquils were scattered over the handsome lace cloth, creating a charming and exquisite effect.

Mrs. E. L. Connolly, mother of the hostess, and grandmother of the honor guest, received with Mrs. Hentz and Miss Spalding, standing before a background of palms and ferns.

Others assisting in entertaining were: Mrs. John L. Spalding, mother of the honor guest; Mrs. H. Warner Martin, Mrs. Herbert Millard, of Asheville, N. C.; Miss Annie Sue Bailey, Mrs. Louise Spalding Foster, Mrs. Elijah Brown, Mrs. George M. Brown, Sr., Mrs. George M. Brown, Jr., Mrs. Charles M. Brown, of Marietta; Miss Alice Hentz, Miss Carrie Hoyt Brown, Miss Dorothy Copeland, of Auburn, N. Y.; Miss Sallie Eugenia Brown, Miss Isabella Stevens, Mrs. Luther Bowser, Jr., Mrs. Charles Sheldon, Mrs. John Reid, Sr., of Roswell; Mrs. Carter Helm Jones, Mrs. Roy Dorsey, Mrs. George Street, Mrs. John Holmes, Mrs. James Wells, Mrs. Beverly DuBose, Mrs. Charles Wilson, Mrs. George Turner, Mrs. Lawrence Grant.

The members of the Debutante club also assisted in receiving the guests.

Mrs. Hentz received her guests wearing a handsome gown of black crepe satin, embroidered in pearls and crystals, with a corsage bouquet of pink roses, jonquils and valley lilies. Miss Spalding was a lovely figure in an exquisite gown of delicately shaded lavender georgette crepe and with this she wore a corsage of pink roses and jonquils.

Mrs. Connolly wore a handsome model of black satin combined with white, with a lovely shoulder bouquet of roses and valley lilies. About 500 members of Atlanta's social contingent called during the hours of 4 and 6 o'clock.

Mr. and Mrs. Irvin Celebrate Silver Wedding Anniversary

A beautiful social event in Cornelia was the celebration on Wednesday evening, February 11, of the 25th wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Lafayette Young Irvin, at their beautiful new home on J. Biggers avenue.

One hundred and twenty-five guests were invited. The home was artistically decorated with southern smilax, cut flowers, love birds and tulle throughout the entire lower floor, carrying out the color scheme of green and silver. The reception hall and music room were lovely with bowls and vases of narcissi. Valley lilies and silver streamers were used effectively in the dining room and living room, where an altar was formed of southern smilax, ferns, Easter lilies with a massive silver candelabra holding green and white tapers.

The guests were received by Mrs. Lee V. Irvin, Mrs. Allen J. Jarrard, Mrs. Frank C. Wofford, Mrs. Perry C. Cunningham, Lee V. Irvin, Buford A. McMillan.

Miss Mary Lou Kenimer, sister of Mrs. Irvin, kept the register. Miss Bradberry sang "I Love You Truly." Louis H. Jarrard and Louis Jarrard, Jr., first approached the altar and lighted the tapers, then came Mrs. Louis H. Jarrard, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. Irvin, becoming gowned in green crepe with silver lace and ostrich trimming. She was met at the foot of the stairway by Hoyt Irvin, the elder son. Next came Miss Connie Ruth Irvin wearing a rose brocade silk with silver lace trimmings, and Clarence Irvin. They grouped themselves on each side of the altar.

Mr. and Mrs. Irvin entered together. Mrs. Irvin was beautiful in a gown of white crepe de chine with rhinestone and ostrich trimming and corsage bouquet of sweetheart roses showered with valley lilies. They were met at the altar by their pastor, Rev. A. T. Cline, who officiated in a manner very appropriate for the occasion.

Then followed an informal reception. The hostess was assisted in entertaining by Mrs. B. A. McMillan, Mrs. F. J. Adams, Mrs. Judge J. J. Kinney and Mrs. A. T. Cline. The many handsome gifts were displayed in the sun parlor. Punch was served in the dining room by Miss Valworth, McMillan and Miss Connie Ruth Irvin. An interesting contest, which added a great deal of pleasure to the occasion, was preceded by a short program of music and reading.

The out-of-town guests were: Mr. and Mrs. Clayborne Whitmore, Westminster, S. C.; Mr. and Mrs. Louis H. Jarrard and Louis Jarrard, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Allen J. Jarrard, Cleveland, Ga.; Miss Mary Lou Kenimer, of Atlanta, Ga.

Mr. Irvin is the son of the late G. B. Irvin and is one of Cornelia's most progressive merchants and also mayor of the city of Cornelia.

Mrs. Irvin is a member of a prominent northeast Georgia family, and before her marriage was Miss Connie Alma Kenimer. Mr. and Mrs. Irvin are the parents of five children, Miss Ethel Irvin, of Miami, Fla.; Mrs. L. H. Jarrard, of Cleveland, Ga.; Henry Hoyt Irvin, student of Mercer university, Macon, Ga.; Clarence Lafayette Irvin and Connie Ruth Irvin.

THE CHIN LINE.

Sometimes age shows in tiny wrinkles around the eyes, so faint one sees them only when one is very tired. Sometimes it is wrinkles, or brackets as they call them, around the mouth, and very often it is by a falling of the flesh from the chin. If it is the latter, begin a course of massage and astringents. If the middle-aged look comes because you are getting stout, remember that a lot of that surplus flesh is going to settle under the chin, stretching the skin there until it looks like a bag. If it is overweight, of course you will start to reduce if you are wise. And the wiser you are, the sooner you'll start, for it's no joke to make that stretched skin smooth and taut and firm as it should be.

I'd suggest a sort of pinching massage, taking the flesh between the fingers and thumb and pinching and kneading it. Then massage backward from the chin to the throat, using the upper or the inner parts of the fingers whichever is most convenient. If you use cream, use cleansing cream, and follow each massage by an ice rub lasting ten minutes. This not only helps reduce the flesh, it also tightens the loose, leazy skin and makes the texture of the skin itself finer.

Many people ask me what I think of chin straps. Personally, I think it's a shame anyone has to bother with such ugly and artificial contrivances, but I must admit they have their uses. If the skin has been stretched under the chin, it can be rubbed with astringent stuff and then a strap adjusted to keep the flesh firmly in place. They're best worn at night; but if you were alone and uninterrupted doing your housework, for instance, you might put one on then, and wear it during the few hours when your morning duties occupy your time. These straps are braces and do help by holding the muscles in position a few hours a day.

Peggy-Chapping usually comes from inactive perspiration and oil glands, and by poor circulation. Hence any treatment that helps these conditions, and any systematic exercise which puts the body in good condition decreases the skin's tendency to chap.

When the skin has this tendency and you do not dry it thoroughly after bathing, especially in hot water, and then go out, your skin will always chap. From the habit of biting the lips chapping is also apt to follow. Try camphor ice or a white lipstick to protect your lips from the air while you are out and use any of the honey and almond cream mixtures on your hands after washing them.

All inquiries addressed to Miss Forbes in care of the "Beauty Chats" department will be answered in these columns in their turn. This requires considerable time, however, owing to the great number received. POEMS THAT LIVE.
SIGH NO MORE, LADIES.
Sigh no more, ladies, sigh no more:
Men were deceivers ever;
One foot in sea, and one on shore,
To one thing constant never.

Then sigh no more,
But let them go,
And be you blithe and bonny;
Converting all your sounds of woe
Into, Hey, nonny, nonny.

Sing no more ditties, sing no mores
Of dumps so dull and heavy;
The fraud of men was ever so,
Since summer first was leavy;
Then sigh no more,
And let them go,
And be you blithe and bonny;
Converting all your sounds of woe
Into, Hey nonny, nonny.

The Gown of Today

In the modern art of designing women's gowns, the three words used to test a successful model are simplicity, slenderness and grace.

Has a gown these three important qualities? Then it is a success! And lucky the woman who finds it! The dress sketched emphasizes simplicity and grace, and no woman could wear it without at least appearing slender.

It is of crepe-back satin in a heavy lustrous quality. The graceful drapery which falls in a jabot at each side is cut all in one with the back of the gown. There is an accent of color in a band of perverche blue crepe that outlines the collar and jabot.

"Fair and warm," is once again the order of the day at the local office of the United States Weather bureau. C. E. Von Herrmann, in charge, in his daily forecast, has predicted for today pointed to the minimum of 45 degrees on Tuesday morning. He is also inclined to claim that spring has already arrived.

"Lots of folks said that it was much cooler," said Mr. von Herrmann, Tuesday. "And when a temperature as high as 45 degrees is described that way, it is an evidence to me that spring-like weather is with us to stay."

The thermometer rose to the 60 degree mark in the afternoon after registering 50 at noon. The forecast of a clear day with only a light cloudiness and occasional showers, with temperature above normal prevailed.

Temperatures are generally moderate in all parts of the country but generally below normal in the north. Several of the northern tier of states,

My Matrimonial Vacation

by VIOLET DARE

AUTHOR OF "The Half-Time Wife," "The Husband Hunter," "One Wife on Approval," etc.

WHO'S WHO AND WHAT'S HAPPENED. Nancy Larrabee remains in New York with her mother. Virginia, when her husband, Jim Larrabee, who is an army officer, goes to the Philippines on foreign service, Distillation after six months of marriage when she meets another woman in her husband's arms, she plays the social game at her mother's dictation, in her relationship with Frank Harrison, a wealthy man twice her age, and Nicholas Wayne, whom she really likes.

TODAY'S INSTALLMENT.

XV—I PLAY FATE. As I sat there talking with Mrs. Jordan I thought of her husband as I had seen him the night before. Not one of the women guests at his party had been as pretty as his wife was. And she had charm and intelligence as well as beauty. Yet he preferred those other—one or two very gay debutantes, a chorus girl, several actresses who had very small parts in second-rate plays—and me. Was I second-rate, too, I asked myself. I studied Mrs. Jordan across the table. It seems queer to me always that the old theory about beauty isn't true. Perhaps there was a time when it was the beautiful woman who had everything, though they do say that Cleopatra was no beauty.

But nowadays a girl who is quick-witted and fascinating doesn't have to be beautiful, if she has style. And there are so many really beautiful women, like Mrs. Jordan, whose husbands just leave them to sit on the side lines while they pursue somebody else through the game of life!

Nathalie Jordan was really wonderfully beautiful, if her face hadn't been so sad. I sat there looking at her, and suddenly I resolved to step in and play fate.

After all, why shouldn't I? I felt sure that her husband didn't realize as well as beauty. And she'd let herself be unhappy over him till she'd lost her charm for him. If she really loved him, she ought to have him back!

"Oh Mrs. Jordan, why do you go south?" I asked her, as she languidly discussed her plans, and wondered whether to go to White Sulphur or Virginia Hot Springs or take the Mediterranean trip.

"Oh—just to be doing something, I suppose," she answered. "I'm so tired of New York."

"I think I could show you a side of New York that would interest you," I exclaimed impulsively. "Won't you let me?"

Virginia looked at me in surprise, but I hurried on. "There are so many attractive places—and people—do play around with me a bit, Mrs. Jordan, and see if I can't make the city interesting."

I could see that she didn't understand at all; that she wondered why I should take such an interest in what she did. But after a moment's hesitation she smiled and said slowly, "Well, why not? I'll postpone my trip a few weeks, and meantime you can show me whatever you like."

I wondered later, as I walked over to the hotel where I was to meet Nick, whether I had been awfully foolish. I hadn't been awfully foolish, I didn't think. But after a moment's reflection I decided that I was going to do just what I was going to do. Just what I was going to do.

Nick took me to the quaintest place—a sort of a cross between a Russian inn and a deep-sea cavern. It was awfully attractive, and at all the tables there were general public hadn't discovered it. There was a Russian nobleman in charge—I don't believe there are any left anywhere except in New York, where they all run restaurants! And a group of Russians furnished the music, and there were Russian waiters, and chefs, and bus boys.

There were benches around the walls, and huge floor cushions heaped in the corners, where you could sit if you wanted to.

"Nick, I love this place!" I exclaimed as we went in. "How did you ever discover it?"

"It's backed by three young business men," he answered, with a queer little smile, "and your friend Nick is one of them!"

"Nick! Not really?"

"Sure. Didn't I tell you that I had to have more money? I'm willing to do anything to get it. I lost what I wanted more than anything else in the world because I didn't have it, and now—"

"Now you're going to get the money, and then get your dear's desire back again," I supplied, as we sat down at a corner table.

"No, there's no hope of that," I guessed, he answered gloomily. "But I'm going to get the money anyway."

I looked around at the other people who were dining there. It was really an interesting crowd, not at all the usual sort that one sees on or near Broadway. Over on the opposite side of the room was one of the prettiest girls I had ever seen, dining with a rather oldish man.

"Nick, what a pretty girl—over there," I said; a man always thinks you're so generous if you call his attention to some other girl that way—but being a blonde myself, I never bother to do it unless the other girl is a brunette. Why take chances foolishly!

He glanced at her carelessly, then turned back to me quickly. He had turned very pale, and his face had grown tense.

"Yes—that's my wife," he said, "or rather, she used to be."

She had seen him too. And I had my second inspiration of that day. I knew that he was still in love with her—and she might still be in love with him. And it's possible to make a woman jealous, if she still cares for a man.

I smiled up at Nick in my sweetest fashion. "Don't be a fool, Nick," I murmured. You'd have thought I was saying "I love you!" at least. "You care for her, don't you? Well, be awfully nice to me, and let's find out if she still cares for you."

Kiwanis Club Celebrates 7th Anniversary Tuesday With Special Program

The seventh anniversary of the granting of the charter of the Atlanta Kiwanis club was celebrated by the organization Tuesday at the Ansley hotel.

A huge cake bearing seven large candles adorned the main speakers' table at the meeting. The program was in charge of Professor J. M. Watters, of Georgia School of Technology.

The principal address of the luncheon was delivered by Dr. Thorne Jacobs, of Oglethorpe university. Dr. Jacobs spoke on "George Washington."

He contrasted the age in which we are living with the era of Washington and stressed one of the strong points of Washington's far-seeing address, viz., "America should not enter into any entangling alliances with foreign countries."

The subject was deemed appropriate to the present age of America which is now in the center of foreign entanglements.

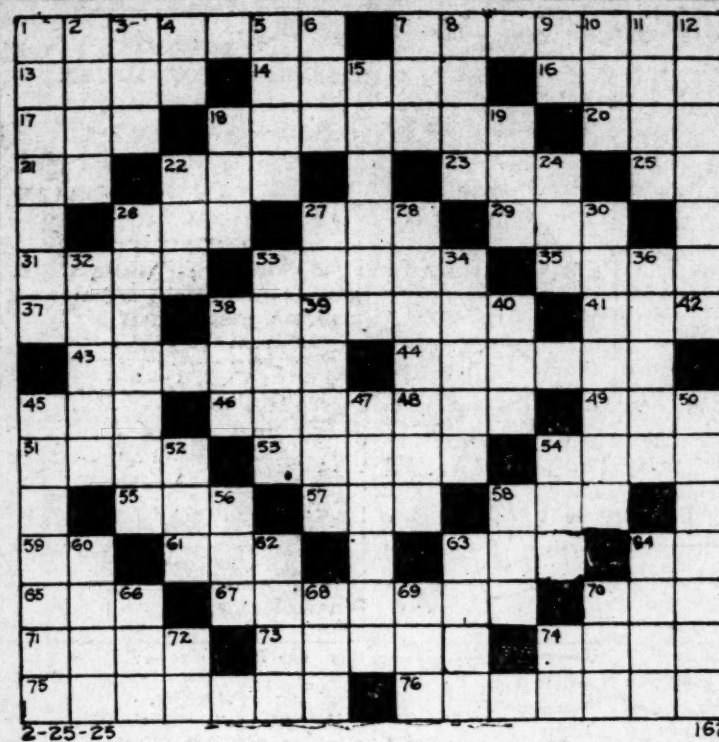

An added feature was a brief address by four past presidents who spoke on the growth of the organization and what they believed that the club had meant to the city. The past presidents who delivered addresses were: Walter Barnwell, Sherard Kennedy, Arthur Brooke and George Eubanks.

Frank T. Reynolds, prominent Atlanta and a charter member of the organization, who, due to his untiring efforts, succeeded in getting the charter for the organization, was the first speaker of the meeting and gave an interesting outline of the history of the club. His remarks were well received by the audience which was unusually large.

Music for the luncheon was furnished by an orchestra from the Georgia Military academy of College Park. Near the end of the luncheon Colonel J. C. Woodward, of the College Park institution, announced that G. M. A. was the runner-up of the Cotton States basketball tournament in Auburn, Ala., last week. The basketball team was congratulated for the splendid showing made, by the Kiwanis club.

One well-known authority recommends that the annual physical examination should include a careful examination for evidence of beginning cancer.

WOMAN DROPS DEAD AS DANCE IS ENDED

Baltimore, Md., February 24.—Miss Delmar Carroll, 26, dropped dead on the dancing floor at the annual ball of the Italian club of Baltimore last night. She had just finished a lively fox trot when she collapsed. Physicians believe death was due to a sudden heart attack. It was near midnight and she had not missed a dance.

The unsanitary conditions that are to be found around the average farmhouse are not the result of the farmer's apathy in the matter, but rather the result of his lack of information regarding modern sanitation.

Burned Evidence

By MRS. WILSON WOODROW

The story is being told by young Dandridge, junior member of a New York firm of lawyers. Old Jerome Fodick, one of the richest clients of the firm, invites Dandridge to lunch at his home. The young lawyer is interested in the old man's granddaughter, Sara, a beautiful young society woman, who is Fodick's heir. Fodick tells Dandridge that Sara's father, his only son, had spent many years in South America, where he died. After his death a South American woman appeared at the Fodick home with baby Sara, whose mother, the nurse said, had died soon after the baby's father. Fodick had in- vestigated the woman's story and found it to be true.

After luncheon Dandridge and Sara, a famous psychic, calls on Fodick and tells him she had been an intimate friend of Sara's mother, in Buenos Aires when Sara was an infant and that when she had left the city on a theatrical tour she had left Sara's mother all her jewelry and a large sum of money. When she returned to New York, Sara's mother was dead and her property had disappeared. She has just succeeded in tracing them, and she demands that Jerome Fodick return her jewelry and the money with interest. A few days later the old man is found dead in his auto. Dandridge's demands on Fodick, and informs him that the medium had carried handwriting, identical to a list in Sara's possession. Before Dandridge is able to have Mr. Fodick's safe, which contains important letters, opened, it is mysteriously drilled and rifled. Curran and Dandridge hasten over to the Fodick home and find that the old man's secretary, Miss O'Connor, they both have good sibs, Herbert claims that he spent the hours between 6 and 11 at the house of Professor Markham, but the night watchman shatters his alibi by reporting to Curran that he saw him go into the house about 8 o'clock and come out a little after 9:30. Herbert claims to his alibi, but admits that he allowed a Professor Quigley, known to him slightly, to remain in the museum alone during the afternoon.

Sara Fodick continues to have Madam Adelbron invited to give readings at a bazaar for one of her charities. She also arranges to have a crystal gazer present.

INSTALLMENT XXI.

ADELBRON SERVES FOR CHARITY.

In spite of Sara's gracious inclusion of myself as a consultant, I soon found that my province, and that of Curran, also, was merely to say, "Yes, yes," to her proposals. Sara was a born executive, inheriting the Fodick faculty for putting her plans through without a hitch; so when the night of the bazaar arrived, hurried though her preparations had been, there was nothing wanting either in arrangements or stage setting for the scene she had determined should be enacted.

The Philadelphia crystal gazer was on hand, and properly coached in the part she was to play; Curran and I had our directions; the properties were all in place. Sara's only regret, so she said, was that she herself could not be present. Both for policy's sake, and on account of her mourning, we all felt it was better she should not appear.

All bazzars look alike, I thought, as I entered the big armory that evening; floating banners, bright hued electric lights, flower decked

"Well, she simply couldn't keep her greedy eyes off it." booths, pretty and rapacious vendors of all kinds of worthless wares. Then, through this riot of scarlet and green and yellow and blue, my eye was drawn irresistibly to a somber booth on one side of the hall. With heavy black velvet curtains falling about it, and revealing nothing of the interior, it was like a shadow cast upon the brilliance of the scene, arresting the attention and causing no end of comment and wonder.

Directly across from it was the tent of Madam Adelbron; for Sara had prognosticated truly when she insisted that the medium would never overlook such an opportunity. With one eye on the publicity value of her appearance, and one on the fact that by giving her services to the cause she would ingratiate herself with women of both social and financial importance, she had agreed to show herself for an hour or two each evening during the week the bazaar was to last, and give psychic readings, limiting the number of these to fifteen each evening, and stipulating for a price of twenty-five dollars a head.

In order to give an appearance of fairness, the bazaar managers had arranged that her subjects should be chosen by lot; but, of course, as always, special favorites were smuggled into the list, and naturally Sara had seen to it through Miss Avery that Curran should be included.

I gathered from what he told me that she had appraised him as a prosperous and successful railroad executive, and depending on this impression of him had pointed out his strength and various weaknesses. "She wasn't bad at all," he admitted. "She sizes you up mighty close, and where she's off, she skims over it so quick that if you aren't watching, you'd never notice the slip. She told me things about myself that are true all right, but that I'll bet you could never guess."

But I told him I was far less interested in her conjectures concerning him than in learning what he thought of her.

"She's a wicked one," he answered, with a significant shake of the head. "And she prefers to play a lone hand; one of the kind that doesn't trust anybody. Believe me, if it wasn't for that doctor, I'd say she was the person who put that dart into Fodick, and that she thought no more about it than you would of swatting a fly."

"Her weakness is jewels," he said thoughtfully. "Jewels, and the money to buy 'em with. She'd go to any lengths for that. See this ring?" He held out his hand. "An odd thing, a blended ruby and sapphire, curiously set. Old David Cutler gave it to me for recovering his collection. Well, she simply couldn't keep her greedy eyes off it. They glittered like a drunkard's at the sight of whisky."

"But I don't see that all that advances us to any extent," I carped. "I could have told you practically the same thing from my impressions of her the day she called on Mr. Fodick."

Curran gave me a sideways glance.

"The evening isn't over yet," he reminded me. He was right, the evening had not begun to be over yet. In fact, it was just nearing its peak. And moving about as I had been from group to group, stopping for a word with this or that acquaintance, I was able to gauge the mood of the crowd. Adelbron was unmistakably a big drawing card; and yet by some freak of mob psychology the crystal gazer of the black tent was the feature everyone was talking about.

Even before Curran had presented himself at the shrine of Adelbron the babble concerning the black booth across the way and its mysterious occupant had trickled to the ears of the famous psychic. It was in the air, and Adelbron could hardly have been what she was if she had not been quick to sense the varying currents of popular opinion.

Curran, on concluding his interview with her, had not failed to add his mite to her discomfort.

"Now," he said, "I guess I'll step over, and see what this crystal gazer they're all talking about can tell me."

There was a curl of contempt to Adelbron's lips, and an exasperated shrug of her huge shoulders.

"That funeral place! Here, where all is gay! It makes everybody solemn. It gives me to shiver to look at it. They should write over it: 'Everybody, he must die!' And the woman there with the mask. Why is that? Is her face eaten off by rats that she must hide it? Some one has thrown acid on her, I think," with an evil leer.

"And who is she?" he demanded. "She gives no name, they say. The crystal gazer are not ashamed of their names. They are not ashamed of their names. Their names mean money to them. Who then is she? Have you heard, monsieur?"

Curran shook his head.

"Bah!" madam winked knowingly. "Some girl hired from the theater, I guess, to fool the people and take their money." She drew herself up in righteous scorn. "I, too, can read the crystal, if I want to. But I do not do such child's play. I came here for charity, because I love the poor. And I could fool, too, make trickiness that the public would eat up and drink down. But no; I would not—I she wanted to say, 'stoop,' but the word would not come and as usual she substituted—'I would not bend double to do it. I r-r-reverence my gifts.'"

"Maybe," said Curran craftily, "the masked woman is one of your crystal gazing friends, who didn't want to show her face because she knew you would be the greater attraction?"

This was a new idea to Adelbron, and in her vast egotism she caught at it as a not improbable explanation. Rivals had arisen before and made attempts to undermine her prestige by equally covert and stealthy methods.

"It would be like that poison splitting cat, Valerie, to make a puppet show in a catafalque. Her thick cheeks purpled under her rouge as her shimmering anger boiled over. 'Valerie, eh? I have cut her claws before. I can do it again. I will expose her here before all these people. Watch me. I can tell fraud through a thick fence.'"

"Shall I tell her you are coming, when I talk to her?" asked Curran rising.

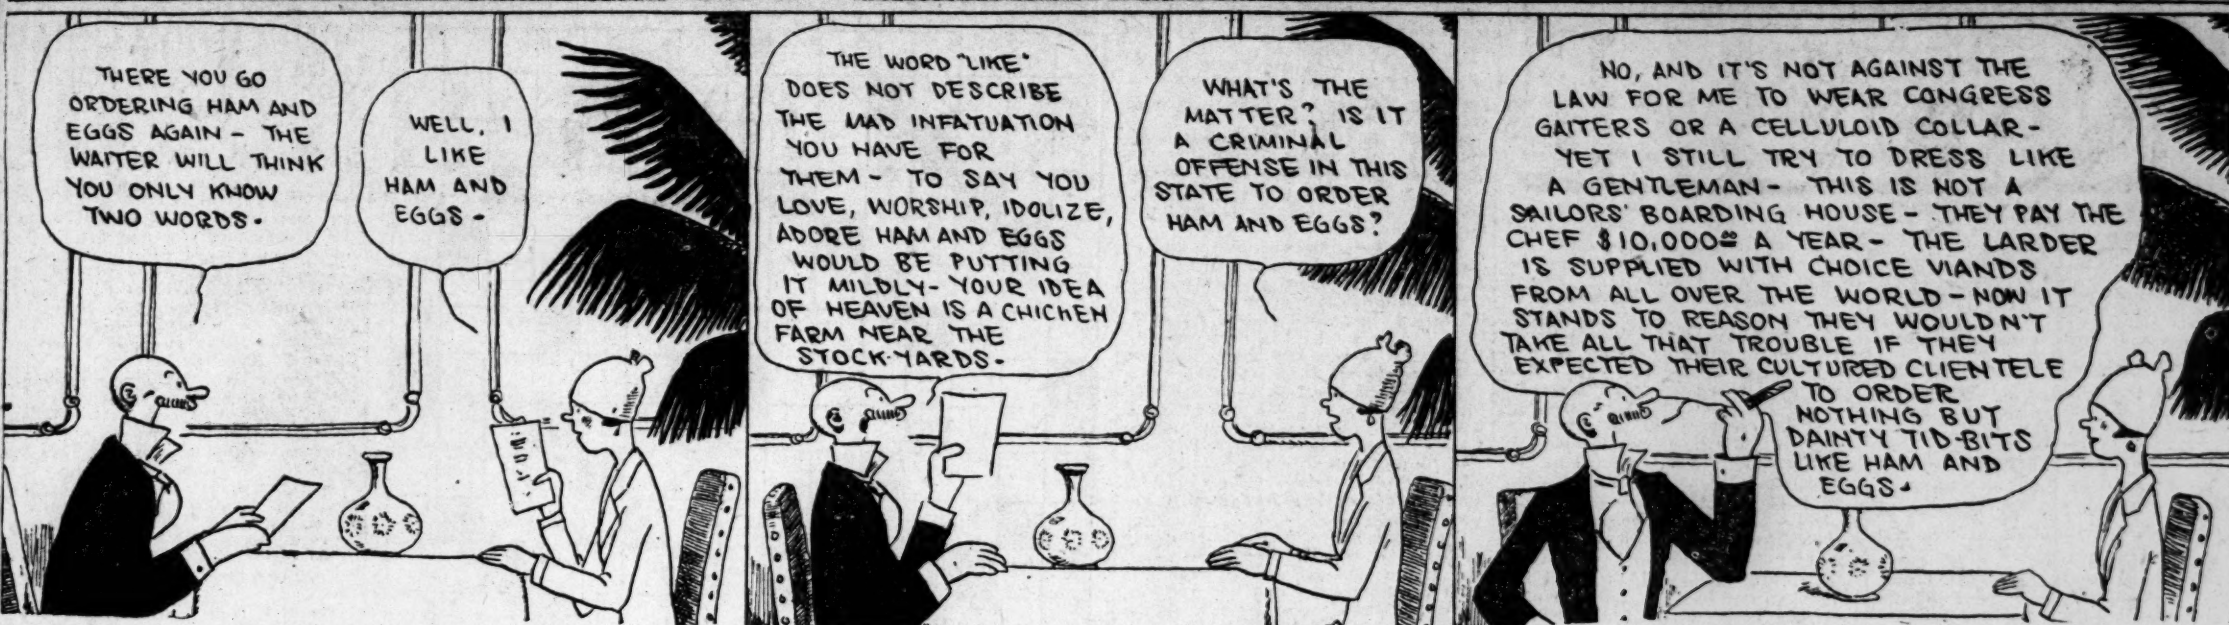

"No. No. That would be imbecile. She would run like a rat." She picked up a pad at her side, and glanced at it. "Yes; I see I have only one more reading. So go to her, go quickly; and when she gives you audience, ask her to save the next place for some one who is what you call somebody—a person of importance—that you will bring to her."

Curran, as he finished telling me this, gave a slight start, and laid his hand on my arm.

"By Jove, she's coming now!" he exclaimed. "Evidently she couldn't wait for me to fetch her. Come on!" He pushed me hurriedly toward the rear of the black booth, where from behind the curtains we could both see and hear, without ourselves being seen. "This is going to go good," he whispered. "Batting Adelbron, Heavyweight Psychic Champion of the World, against the Masked Unknown, both members of this club. Dandridge, if you dare to sneeze while that mountain of sin is in there, I'll throttle you."

New Orleans is a morning paper city

The Times-Picayune printed 2,468,535 agate lines of national advertising in 1924, an excess of 1,205,815 lines over the second New Orleans paper and 1,544,118 lines over the third New Orleans paper—53% of the total as compared with 27% in the second paper and 20% in the third paper.

First in National Advertising

Lineage figures in this advertisement compiled by New Orleans Publishers' Association, which comprises all the New Orleans papers.

THE great New Orleans market offers a particularly inviting field to national advertisers because practically all the financially competent homes in the city and trading zone can be reached at one cost, through one medium—The Times-Picayune. Steadily increasing recognition of this fact among national advertisers is strongly reflected in the advertising lineage figures of the New Orleans papers for 1924. During the year The Times-Picayune, published seven mornings a week, printed considerably more national advertising than the two evening - and - Sunday papers combined—a dominance probably unequalled in any other large city of three 7-day papers in America. The Times-Picayune gained 105,489 lines of national advertising over 1923, while the second paper lost 84,825 lines and the third paper lost 8,434 lines. Of the national advertisers who during 1924 used one paper alone to reach the New Orleans market, about *nine out of ten chose The Times-Picayune.

This newspaper likewise dominated its field in the two other major divisions of advertising—local display and classified. It led in practically all standard classifications of advertising, whether the message was directed mainly to men buyers or to women buyers.

Only faithful, efficient service to readers and outstanding, consistent results to advertisers can account for such an overwhelming preference on the part of space buyers throughout the country and at home.

*This percentage does not include proprietary medicine advertising, which is rigidly censored by this newspaper.

Sixth District Schools Offer Numerous Entrants In Oratorical Contest

Great Interest Is Being Shown in Every Part of District, Professor R. I. Knox Reports.

It now seems assured that every high school in the sixth district will have an entry in the district oratorical contest, to be held at Monticello on April 9. The contest was organized by R. I. Knox, of Jackson, president of the Sixth District High School association, states that the contest, which is sponsored in Georgia by The Constitution and the State High School association, and nationally by the American Bar association, is arousing much interest over the entire district and that every school which has so far reported is entering from eight to twenty boys and girls in first elimination trials.

These preliminary trials will be held in each school, in order to select the champion orator of the school to represent it in the district meeting. These, by terms of the contest, must be held on or before March 24 and Mr. Knox, in his letter, states that in the Sixth District they will be held on March 20.

Contest Conditions. All bona fide high school students, boys or girls, not over 19 years of age on February 1, are eligible to enter for this contest. The orations delivered must be original, must not take over 10 minutes to deliver and may be based on the federal constitution itself, or on the relationship thereto, of Washington, Jefferson, Hamilton, Madison, Marshall, Webster or Lincoln.

The Constitution will give a prize of $15 in gold to the winner in each of the 12 district contests to be held either April 9 or 10. These twelve district winners will then come to Atlanta for the state finals on April 24. The Constitution offers two prizes, one of $100 and one of $25 for first and second place winners in the state competition.

The state champion will then go to Nashville, Tenn. on May 1 to compete with state winners from Virginia, North Carolina, South Carolina, Alabama and Tennessee, for the championship of this zone. For the purposes of this contest, the country has been divided into seven zones.

The letter from Mr. Knox, telling of plans for the Sixth District contest and for the school contests in that district, is as follows:

"Editor Constitution: Much interest is being shown over the entire sixth district in the oratorical contest. All schools reported to me so far are entering from eight to 20 contestants in the first try-out. The local papers have responded well in offering $10 gold pieces as local prizes."

"In Butts county I have made it a subject for all schools in the county to take part. Every school in the county will have at least one contestant in the try-out. Jackson City school will have eight or ten. In the city schools the pupils are working on the subject."

"We will have our preliminary contest on the night of March 20, I have asked that all schools in the sixth district hold theirs on the same night and report to me the following morning the winners. We will have our district contest on April 9 in Monticello, Ga.

"Yours very truly,"

"February 23, 1925." R. I. KNOX.

BIG CROWDS ATTEND STEPHENS MEETINGS

Revival services which are being conducted at the Baptist tabernacle by Rev. H. L. Stephens, of Canada, are drawing large crowds, and much interest is being shown in the meetings.

The third sermon, delivered Tuesday night, dealt with the present great need of the vision of Jesus Christ. Taking as his text, the 17th chapter of Matthew, he told of the transfiguration of Jesus and the vision of Jesus which he gave to his disciples. "Jesus does not care what the world thinks about Him, it is what the individual thinks and says about Him," he said. "Faith in Jesus makes the soul on fire with love for God and for our fellow man," said the evangelist.

"Very few Christians want to take the means of grace in their lives. It means yielding of our own life to God. It means casting away from the contemptible, miserable formalism that tends to hold us. The secret of a real Christian's life is a vision of Jesus Christ. He comes to us, not as a distant, unattainable ideal, but as a real, living, breathing man, who has been crucified for our sins."

Services will continue for three weeks and all denominations are invited to attend. Each day there will be a prayer service at 10:30 o'clock, immediately preceding the morning service, which will be conducted by Mrs. H. L. Stephens. The regular night services begin at 7:30 o'clock.

A feature of each meeting is the singing by Professor Bealmeyer, of Indianapolis, and Elmer Slider, director of the tabernacle choir.

Knights of Pythias Of Waycross Lodge Observe Birthday

Waycross, February 24.—(Special.) The sixty-first anniversary program of Waycross Lodge, Knights of Pythias, was presented Monday evening at the lodge rooms on Plant avenue. The program was an interesting and well-planned affair, including speeches, music and readings.

Among the out-of-town men on the program were G. R. Coffin, grand chancellor of Atlanta, William H. Leopold, grand keeper of records and seals of Savannah, and B. D. Brantley, of Blacksburg.

The program refreshments were served.

WOMEN WILL ATTEND FRED HOUSER DINNER

With provisions for 100 additional guests, women will be permitted to attend the "circus-dinner" to be given Thursday night at the Atlanta Biltmore hotel in honor of Fred Houser according to an announcement made by Ray W. Webb, secretary of the Atlanta convention and tourist bureau.

Hitherto the guest list has been restricted to men but the numbers of guests against this "gross discrimination" have been so great that the change in plans, Mr. Webb declared.

With many prominent Atlanta appearing in the cast, a rehearsal was held at the Biltmore hotel. Mr. Houser, who will be the guest of honor, is secretary of the Atlanta convention and tourist bureau.

RETURNED MISSIONARY SPEAKS AT SPARTA

Sparta, Ga., February 24.—(Special.)—Rev. Foster, a returned missionary from the mission fields of northern China, lectured to Methodist missionary societies Tuesday afternoon, on the centenary movement of the church launched several years ago. The returned missionary gave the women first-hand information on the use of this fund in the mission work.

He talked interestingly of the hardships experienced by him and others in the same work and urged that the remaining payments on the centenary fund be made.

The lecture was enthusiastically received and will, no doubt, give marked impetus to the movement here.

ST. STEPHENS' PLEA MADE BY SWAIN

Macon, Ga., February 24.—Evidence to show that James A. Swain, who shot and killed J. Walter Johnston here on the night of December 16, fired in self-defense, was introduced late this afternoon by the defense. The state rested shortly after noon.

The case will not go to the jury before tomorrow night, if then. Mrs. W. E. Gregory, mother-in-law of Swain, reluctantly gave her story of the shooting to the jury after the tragic shooting of Johnston. She said that Swain snatched his revolver twice at her, but the gun did not fire.

The state showed that four bullets were shot through Johnston's body, two fired at Mrs. Swain and her mother, and two which were taken from the revolver. By some accident Swain had placed two .22-caliber cartridges in the gun and the others were the ones that did not explode.

Sheriff's deputies testified as to how they broke into the Gregory home to arrest Swain, while he still had the gun in his hands.

On cross-examination Mrs. Gregory declared that she had not forbidden her son-in-law to come to the Gregory home.

W. J. SIMMONS STILL SHOWS IMPROVEMENT

Gainesville, Ga., February 24.—Colonel William Joseph Simmons, who has been improved tonight and had at least a fifty-fifty chance for recovery, hospital officials reported.

Simmons, who is president of the Knights of the Ku Klux Klan, was shot in the chest by a bullet from a .22-caliber rifle, which he was carrying, on the night of January 24, at a party given at the home of a friend, four broken ribs and a punctured left lung in an automobile accident near here Friday night.
